THE CAMPAIGN.

[illegible] Coast Democrat Talks About the Situation.

[illegible] FORCED INTO A DECLARATION.

[illegible] Republican Convention—The Chinese Minister Advises his Countrymen to Keep Out of Politics.

[illegible] July 21.—[Special.]—Delegate Mahan of [illegible] interviewed, said: "A lot of dem[illegible] in San Francisco raised a hubbub over Butler [illegible] congratulating messages, promis[illegible] support of the Pacific slope. But their [illegible] worthless. The 402 delegates who [illegible] were pledged to choose for the [illegible] candidate: first, Tilden; second, Thurman [illegible] Field. Not a word was said [illegible] Cleveland will carry California be[illegible] is unsettled, and the community [illegible] national government for reforms which [illegible] and increase prosperity. It [illegible] that in the hands of a demagogue [illegible] interests will be subserved. We [illegible] stations on our route, and [illegible] was a demonstration. True to our [illegible] for Tilden and Hendricks, of [illegible] believe it, away out there in the [illegible] of the people was for Cleveland [illegible] brakeman and conductor laughingly [illegible] come over to Cleveland before [illegible]. It was a surprise to me to [illegible] such enthusiastic support so far [illegible] an intelligence office. What[illegible] the past is now lost; he has [illegible] in California. Whatever action he may [illegible] Butler will have no effect on the [illegible] of the railroad companies know [illegible] honest man, and believe Cleve[illegible]. It is an honest belief that they [illegible] but leave every man to exercise [illegible]. Feeling well satisfied of this, I [illegible] Finley and others, who profess [illegible] sentiment, are in error when [illegible] Cleveland and Hendricks will not [illegible] Pacific states. Those who are the fathers [illegible] the Butler Boom in California are [illegible] of the labor element at all, and [illegible] influencing vote at all."

[illegible] REFUSED TO DECLARE FOR CIVIL SERVICE REFORM.

[illegible] July 21.—[Special.]—Senator Pendleton [illegible] the other day by the associated [illegible] main portion of the interview was de[illegible] from Hendricks' expressions with [illegible] civil service reform. It has been suggested [illegible] did not without malice; that he, [illegible] himself, overthrown by the democracy [illegible] civil service reform views, and that [illegible] to force the democratic candidate for [illegible] into an unqualified approval of [illegible] views. He has apparently suc[illegible] Hendricks, who was interviewed yester[illegible] squarely forward and gives expression to [illegible] civil service reform almost exactly as [illegible]. It can hardly be doubted that [illegible] not done this with any too much [illegible] have preferred, doubtless, to [illegible] any discussion of his views on this [illegible] civil service reformers of [illegible] expression are not much in [illegible] party who want offices. Pendleton, [illegible] gained his point, and the democrats of [illegible] inconsistently by supporting a [illegible] president who holds views for [illegible] Pendleton, or treat that candi[illegible] the senate.

[illegible] REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

[illegible] July 21.—[Special.]—The repub[illegible] convention will meet at Sacramento Wed[illegible] nominate electors candidates for con[illegible] the city is full of delegates, most of [illegible] dominated by Blaine hats, and a great [illegible] is going on at all the hotels [illegible] Morrow will almost certainly re[illegible] congressional nomination from the San [illegible]. Judge Adams of San Luis [illegible] time resident of Grant county, in [illegible] will probably be nominated for [illegible]. The monopoly question is the only [illegible] any dissension in the making [illegible]. The country delegates will try to [illegible] railroad plank, and the city interest, [illegible] if not controlled by Crocker, [illegible] will oppose it. The platform will [illegible] on the question.

[illegible] NATIONAL CONVENTION.

[illegible] July 21.—Arrangements are about com[illegible] national convention of the prohibition [illegible] party, which meets here [illegible] Delegations are beginning to arrive. [illegible] Governor St. John and Dr. R. H. [illegible] prominently spoken of for the [illegible] nomination, the latter being urged quite [illegible] said if he is nominated he will head [illegible] with a subscription of $1,000,000. [illegible] a son, has arrived, and is in charge [illegible]

[illegible] LETTER OF ACCEPTANCE.

[illegible] July 21.—[Special.]—It is understood [illegible] letter of acceptance will be about 4000 [illegible] will, as far as possible, avoid the ground [illegible] Blaine's letter. It will appeal to the [illegible] at the same time avoiding any [illegible] of the bloody shirt. The record of [illegible] in the last congress will probably re[illegible]. Logan is expected to return [illegible] the reunion in Minneapolis.

MAHONE STILL IN.

[illegible] July 21.—The Star says: "Senator [illegible] understood, will ask for an injunction [illegible] secretary of state of Virginia from [illegible] poll books, under the new apportion[illegible]. He claims the democratic legis[illegible] apportionment bill without the [illegible] thirds, the vote being two-thirds of [illegible] instead of two thirds of the votes [illegible] legislature."

BUTLER STILL SILENT.

[illegible] July 21.—[Special.]—General Butler has [illegible] been home since the Chicago [illegible] he had not submitted to be in[illegible] reporters since he left Washington. In [illegible] interrogatory he said he was unwil[illegible] his opinion regarding the democratic [illegible] platform or candidates. He said he [illegible] or statement to give.

CURTIS' APPOINTMENT.

[illegible] July 21.—[Special.]—The Times, re[illegible] president's appointment of Curtis of [illegible] Inter Ocean, says: "It is his reward for [illegible] of the Arthur boom, is this nice [illegible] secretary of the commission to visit [illegible] to study methods of securing more [illegible] commercial relations."

[illegible] DELEGATE RECOVERING.

[illegible] July 21.—[Special.]—Andrews, the man [illegible] house at the Chicago convention, to [illegible] delegate, is improving rapidly. His [illegible] will bring him out all right.

ADVICE TO CHINESE.

[illegible] Cautions them to Beware of American Politics.

[illegible] July 21.—[Special.]—The Chinese min[illegible] assemblage of Chinese yesterday, ad[illegible]: "I am much pleased with the pro[illegible] made in this great city, and am, both [illegible] officially, interested in your condi[illegible]. The status of the Chinese in [illegible] what it ought to be; not what it is in [illegible] and not what I feel confident it [illegible] future. I have but a few suggestions [illegible] of American politics; they are a [illegible] which the swimmer is always drowned, [illegible] Americans understand just as little as [illegible] your business, carefully and con[illegible] no matter how humble it may be; let [illegible] this metropolis know how honest and [illegible] people are; they will find ere long that [illegible] they may be to us in the arts of [illegible] we all can teach them fee[illegible] and fair play, which, in the long [illegible] world. I also counsel you to [illegible]. You have succeeded in your [illegible] native land. However much you [illegible] Americanized, you are ever strangers [illegible] their laws, religious customs and [illegible] ever foreign to you, and more or less [illegible]. Only in your native land can you find [illegible] peace for which we all yearn. I [illegible] with magistrates here, that you [illegible] record. Of 1000 Chinamen in New [illegible] neighborhood not one has been ar[illegible] drunkenness, for pauperism, or for being [illegible] and in ten years only eight have made [illegible] amenable to the law for misconduct, [illegible] five were guilty from ignorance [illegible] intent. I shall report your prog[illegible] with pleasure."

THE BOSTON MASS MEETING.

[illegible] Robinson Speaks of the Charges Made by [illegible] Against Blaine and Logan.

[illegible] July 16.—Governor Robinson, who [illegible] night's meeting, emphasized the fact [illegible] between the two great parties [illegible] country, and alluded somewhat face[illegible] little parties which have gone [illegible] putting tickets in nomination. [illegible] the republican convention at Chicago [illegible] of its nominees: [illegible] of the republican party are James [illegible] enthusiastic applause and cheers long [illegible] General John A Logan. [Renewed [illegible]] Now, I stated at the outset [illegible] a duty whenever our election day [illegible] that he alone could perform that [illegible]. I recognize for myself that duty, [illegible] responsibility. It is not in me to [illegible] instead of cleanliness. I want first, [illegible] the time, men that can stand up erect in [illegible] that can be left around the corner or [illegible] [Applause.] I approach the charges [illegible] in a spirit of inquiry, in a way not [illegible] man, but is his duty.

[illegible] ARE MEAN AND COMMON.

[illegible] nothing unless they are supported [illegible] [Applause.] Attacks are cheap and [illegible] They are sometimes the best resort of a [illegible] opponent. They sometimes are the [illegible] this man has in his hands. This sort [illegible] not a new thing this year. Is there a [illegible] a memory a sixteenth of an inch [illegible] to know this he common indul[illegible] opponents? Why, you have only to [illegible] names of the republican leaders to call [illegible] men who have been most violently [illegible] by the democratic party. Lincoln [ap[illegible]], Garfield [applause], and [illegible] and patriotic president of the [illegible] not one of them has escaped charges

[illegible] CHARGES ON BLAINE.

[illegible] that is said to-day against the char[illegible] Blaine was said eight years ago. There [illegible] Look at it in the light of history [illegible] Fresh with those charges be[illegible] convention of 1876 he carried the [illegible] the republican party with him—not [illegible] nomination, but almost, [Ap[illegible]] then a disgraced man? [Cries of "No! No!"] Why, if he were, there are a great many gentlemen to-day declining to support him who indorsed him in the most vigorous and comprehensive language. [Applause and laughter.]

"Again, the convention of 1880 and again a vote that would flatter the heart and delight the pride of any man who had a consciousness of devotion to the country's interest in him—not quite enough, no, but enough to show that the majority of the party had no belief in the assertions. [Applause.] And the same doubting gentlemen were in the party then. Meantime our daughter, the state of Maine, had taken him and made him a senator of the United States. He had demonstrated in both house of congress his marvelous power. [Loud cheers.] He is a man that carries brains with him. [Applause.] Somehow or other the people like that accompaniment.

THE BART TO THE PLUMED KNIGHT.

"When we sit down to think it all over we recognize how much the party of good order in the state of Maine—aye, in the whole country—owes to that man's foresight, pluck, courage, and devotion when he cleaned out the dirty traitors and thieves in the state of Maine. [Vociferous applause.] Some of them that very day ran away from Maine, and they have never gone back. [Great laughter.] They find it elsewhere to tell listening multitudes of the infamy of the man that drove them out. [Applause.]

"Then came the last administration of the country, and the people trusted in Garfield, in his ability, in his patriotism, in his purity, and in his honor. They had full and abiding confidence in him, and he called to his highest service and to his closest relationship James G. Blaine of Maine. [Cheers and applause.]

NOTHING IN THE CHARGES.

"To-day it is said that these charges against Mr. Blaine are not proved—they are only made. Well, if that is the way to slaughter anybody it can be accomplished before to-morrow morning with this whole audience. Make charges, but never sustain them. I bring you the verdict of the republican party against the charges. [Applause.] I bring you the findings of the true and great men that unquestionably adorn the great councils of the country. [Applause.] I bring you the legacy from Garfield himself [applause], and for myself—of no consequence to you, but to me everything—for myself, after patient consideration and examination in the light of duty, and with eight years behind us, I am prepared to say for myself there is nothing in them. [Applause and cheers, long continued with vigor.] Nothing in them—I want to finish my sentence—that shall justify any man to condemn our candidate for the presidency or to withhold his vote from the party that has nominated him. [Applause.] That is my reason, my conclusion, not yours, nor yours, but it is enough for me to justify my own vote. That is controlled by it.

GENERAL LOGAN.

"John A. Logan [applause], a soldier in two wars [applause], a man that has left his blood on the field for his country's sake [applause], is a man that came out of the lowest poverty, that was born so poor that nobody's ambition would try to court his circumstances. People sometimes say of John Logan that he has occasionally been guilty of using bad grammar. [Laughter.] That ought not to be any cause of complaint to a democrat. [Long continued applause and laughter.] But, at all events, he has had enough control of the mother tongue to speak intelligibly, and intelligently, and forcibly, and always loyally. [Applause and cries of "Good!"] And he has done what every young American delights to see accomplished, gone on and up, through struggle and trial, through conflict and distress, until he stands in the highest and proudest body of men under our form of government." [Applause.]

FOREIGN DISPATCHES.

THE CHOLERA EPIDEMIC.

The Number of Deaths Rapidly Increasing—Notes from Various Points.

SCARED HOME BY CHOLERA.

NEW YORK, July 21.—[Special.]—Several of the Oregon's passengers said on landing that they had returned to America sooner than they had intended, on account of cholera. The hotels in Paris and Berlin have not more than half the usual number of guests.

A CALL FOR RELIEF.

NEW YORK, July 21.—[Special.]—The Courier des Etats Unis calls for subscriptions for French cholera sufferers, promising to send the amount where the donors wish, and publishing the names of subscribers.

THE SITUATION IN FRANCE.

PARIS, July 21.—The cholera in Paris is increasing. Eight cases were reported to-day, two of which were fatal. At Toulon the epidemic is assuming a most violent character, nearly all the victims dying suddenly.

FAMINE THREATENED.

TOULON, July 21.—Famine is threatening the city. Provisions are scarce and dear. There is much distress. Hotels are closing their kitchens. Provision warehouses are expected to close, owing to lack of supplies. The cholera at Arles is becoming serious.

A SMALL RIOT.

MARSEILLES, July 21.—A crowd of socialists assembled before the mayor's office yesterday and demanded work. They endeavored to force an entrance into the building, but were prevented by the police. There were seven arrests.

DEATHS FROM CHOLERA.

MARSEILLES, July 21.—Twenty-six deaths from cholera last night. Nine deaths between 9 and noon to-day.

TOULON, July 21.—Deaths last night, twenty-eight.

ENGLAND.

THE GREAT DEMONSTRATION AT LONDON.

LONDON, July 21—2:30 P. M.—The procession of trades unions and others who take part in the demonstration in favor of the franchise bill at Hyde park this afternoon is now forming on the Thames embankment. There is an immense attendance.

3:30 P. M.—All approaches from the strand to the embankment are thronged. Thousands from all parts of the country cover the embankment between Charing Cross and Westminster. The best order prevails, and there is no attempt to interfere with the procession. The prince and princess of Wales will witness the procession from Whitehall.

At noon the organized trades unions assembled at Sloan square, Paddington green, Euston square, Islington green, Clerkenwell green, and at Finsbury circus, the obelisk, Blackfriars and Grosvenor gardens, and proceeded to the embankment. Political delegates wore colors. The streets and bridges across the Thames were packed, and traffic was greatly impeded.

The procession moved in the following order: Mounted farriers, agricultural laborers, provincial deputations, London trades council, representatives from printing, book binding, iron, metal, clothing, leather, shipping, building, cabinet making, fancy goods and general trades, political clubs, liberal associations, temperance bodies and friendly societies. Each section, on arriving at the park, marched to the platform assigned, and the band played until the chairman arrived.

As the procession started from the embankment several loud explosions were heard near the government office. The crowd became greatly frightened, and thousands made a rush towards White hall, believing the explosions due to dynamite. The scare ended when it was found the explosions were nothing more than a salute which the Horse Guards were firing in honor of the birth of the Duchess of Albany's son.

A resolution has been prepared against the rejection of the franchise bill by the house of lords that expresses approval of Gladstone's action, and declares that continued existence of the unchecked power of impeding popular will, which the lords exercise, is not conducive to the welfare of the people and the peace and prosperity of the country.

LONDON NOTES.

LONDON, July 21.—Dr. Oslear Henry Sawkins, surgeon to the queen, is dead.

The damage by fire on Crane wharf, Wapping, Saturday, was £100,000.

RUSSIA.

THE CONSPIRACY AT WARSAW.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 21.—The police at Warsaw have seized 500,000 roubles, and numerous proclamations printed in the Russian and Polish languages, intended for circulation through the empire, in the event of the designs against the Czar, on his recent visit to Warsaw, having been successful. Five nihilists have been arrested at Moscow in whose possession were found large sums of money, dynamite bombs, and documents. The latter showed that since the coronation of the Czar Moscow has been the seat of the executive committee of the nihilists. A state of siege has been proclaimed at Warsaw, and the governor general and chief of police will be removed. Newspapers say that Russia and Germany propose the adoption of an international convention to provide measures for the suppression of dynamiters.

CRIMINAL CALENDAR.

SHERWIN RELEASED.

ALBANY, July 21.—[Special.]—Frank R. Sherwin, who has been confined in jail since October last, has been released, and with his wife and servant has started for his home in New Mexico. Sherwin was convicted of contempt of court in 1874. Yesterday Sherwin received intelligence of the death in New Mexico of his eldest child, a prepossessing young lady of 18, by his first wife. His present wife, to whom he was married just before his arrest, is a daughter of the governor of one of the western territories. Sherwin said last night that his detention here had cost him, indirectly, a quarter of a million dollars. Sherwin's career as banker in New York, railroad reorganizer and land grant manipulator, has been a prominent one.

BODY STOLEN.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—[Special.]—Dr. Hatley, medical superintendent of the infants' hospital on Randall's island, informed the commissioners of charities and of correction last night that on the night of July 13 the body of Maurice Leonard, a foundling who died the 9th, had been stolen from Randall's island cemetery, by some men who landed on the island from a boat. It has just come to the knowledge of the authorities that some unscrupulous undertakers were increasing their incomes by burying the bodies of children in the public cemetery while receiving payment for burial in private graves.

SHOT BY A WOMAN.

DENVER, July 21.—John Ferguson, late cashier of the Brunswick hotel, had been keeping company with a Mrs. A. C. Gould for several months. A week ago he married another lady, and to-day met Mrs. Gould, who drew a bull-dog revolver and shot him three times. Ferguson will die.

RIOT IN MARYLAND.

WILMINGTON, Del., July 21.—It is reported at Middletown that a riot occurred yesterday at Chestertown, Md., in which two persons were killed and five wounded. No particulars.

TWO MORE INDICTMENTS.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—The grand jury to-day found two more indictments against Bellman for presenting false bills and vouchers to the bureau of medicine and surgery.

Complaints that the Civil Service Rules are Ignored.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—[Special.]—The many promotions made within the past two weeks in the various departments of the government in Washington have caused considerable growling among employes of several of the departments. Complaints are made that in the selection of clerks for promotion the civil service rules have been entirely ignored, and favoritism and political influence have secured promotions in many cases of persons whose records in subordinate positions have been bad, and who are totally unfit and incapable of performing satisfactorily the duties of the higher grade of service to which they have been promoted. It is also charged that in promotions ex-soldiers have been neglected, and that in one of the bureaus of the treasury department men who have remained at home and drew their salary from the government during the late war have been promoted over the heads of one-armed and one-legged veterans who were just as competent to fill the positions as the men selected. The department officials claim to have made all promotions under the civil service rules. The growlers are afraid to come out publicly and make charges, claiming that they would risk their positions by so doing, and content themselves with "kicking" through the columns of the daily press over fictitious names.

Builders on a Strike.

NEW YORK, July 21.—About 2000 brick layers, 3000 laborers and 200 hod hoisting engineers and framers struck work this morning because their employers refused to grant the demands that nine hours shall constitute a day's work instead of ten. The employers who denied the request say they can get other men to take their places, and whether they can or not it will be but a few days when the men will be willing to return under old terms. Bosses who granted nine hours think others are foolish, as they will have to yield in the end. As fast as the men struck they were reported at the headquarters of the respective unions. About thirty-five employers allowed men to go to work on their own terms. Hugh Mahone, who has charge of the erection of the new exchange here, says the building trade is very lively. "I don't think," he added, "that boss builders can afford to have men go on a strike for any length of time without suffering great loss." Nearly all large builders will grant demand.

The strikers claim they can stand it longer than the employers can, and will hold out six months. It is reported that on many jobs it was not over ten minutes before the men were told to go to work again. A large number of bosses held out till noon, and then yielded, thus leaving not over 2000 men on a strike.

General Longstreet Asked to Resign.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—The president has called for the resignation of General James Longstreet, as United States Marshal for the northern district of Georgia. This action is based on a recommendation by the attorney general, who had preferred charges against him for carelessness and inefficiency, and asked for his immediate removal. It is generally understood that he will be succeeded by John E Bryant.

An Idaho Man Wants a Wife.

NEW YORK, July 21.—[Special.]—A letter was received at Castle Garden yesterday from M. E. Lewis, of Idaho, asking for a wife. He says he is proprietor of a ranch and livery stable on one of the routes to the Cœur d'Alene mines. He wants a wife not over 30 years old, and willing to work. Idaho girls do not suit him. He says he has searched the country for 200 miles, without finding one to his liking.

The Garfield Monument.

CLEVELAND, July 21.—[Special.]—George Keller, of Hartford, who made the plan for the monument to Garfield which was accepted, has been in the city since Wednesday, in consultation with the Garfield monument association, and has submitted an improved design, which was fully accepted this afternoon.

The President of San Salvador.

NEW YORK, July 21.—[Special.]—President Zaldivar of San Salvador received a salute of twenty-one guns from the fort in the harbor. Central American merchants of this city are preparing a banquet for the president, at which all the consuls will be present.

The Whaling Fleet.

THE GREELY PARTY.

The Rescued Men Improving Rapidly—Congratulations from Paris.

ST. JOHNS, N. F., July 21.—The collier of the Greely relief expedition, Loch Garry, left this afternoon for New York. It takes the mail of the expedition and of the Greely survivors. Greely's strength is steadily increasing. He continues to be fed and banqueted by the leading citizens of St. Johns. Frederick, Connell, Long, Brainerd and Beiderbeck are progressing amazingly. The Alert will be dispatched forty eight hours in advance of the Thetis and the Bear, so the squadron may reach New York simultaneously.

A MINISTER'S VIEWS.

NEW YORK, July 21.—[Special.]—J. Hyatt Smith, in his sermon yesterday said: "I feel American pride that we have planted the stars and stripes in the ice beyond all other nations, but let us consider the cost. All honor to DeLong and his party, dead and living; all honor to Greely, and thrice honor to his rescuers. It was an exhibition of the highest order of heroism. America does not need to send any more men to the north pole; let us hear of no more official murders."

CONGRATULATIONS FROM PARIS.

NEW YORK, July 21.—[Special.]—A special from Paris says: "The Geographical society congratulates the Greely expedition on its success. It mourns for the dead and eulogizes the living."

THE CUP.

AT SARATOGA.

SARATOGA, July 21.—First race—Fon du Lac won, Musk second, Northanna third. Musk led at the start, with Fon du Lac and Northanna next, in the order named. Musk led along the back to the three quarter post, where Fon du Lac drew up, and taking the lead won easily by eight lengths, four between second and third. Time 1:18½.

Second race—Compensation won, Lucky B. second, McCloskey third, and Chanticleer, Referee, Emma and Burgomaster as placed. The favorite, Referee, and Lucky B. made a play for the start; Burgomaster, Compensation and Chanticleer led at the stand. Burgomaster then took up the running to the quarter pole and along the back stretch, Compensation and Referee next. The favorite held the lead to the turn, where he quit. Compensation and Lucky B. then drew out from the field, Compensation winning by four lengths, with a length between second and third. Time, 2:16¼.

Third race—Jocose won, Maid of Athol second, Mattie Rapture third, Will o W. last. Maid of Athol and Jocose made a play the first three furlongs, when Maid of Athol took up the race and had the lead until 100 yards from the wire, when Jocose drew up. The pair ran a grand race home, Jocose winning by a short head. Time, 1:16¾.

KEENE'S ASCOT CUP WRAPPED IN RED TAPE.

NEW YORK, July 21.—[Special.]—A new wrinkle has developed in Keene's Ascot cup matter. It seems the government will not even allow its reshipment to Europe until the original package wherein the cup was brought here can be found. Custodian Trimble of the custom house seizure room has been ordered to rummage among the old junk of the lumber room, and find the pieces of wood which originally enclosed the cup.

THE SAINT THAT CLEVELAND IS.

Something for those to Read who Think he is Such a Superior Man.

The following has been received by Rev. C. R. West, editor the Advance, a leading Baptist paper of Chicago:

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 12, 1884.

Dear Advance: It may be too late to do you any good and may not be needed, but I feel moved to warn you against saying much to the credit of Grover Cleveland. He is a libertine. No Christian should condone his crimes so far as to commend this candidacy. About seven years ago he seduced the head of the cloak department in Flint & Kent's, leading merchants here. He kidnapped the woman after the boy was born, sent her to the Catholic Insane asylum and took the child from her. She escaped, got Milo W. Whitney to help her, finally settled and gave up the child for $500. This I know to be true, for I have it confirmed by Flint & Kent, by Mr. Whitney, her attorney, and by Mrs Williams Baker, where the woman boarded.

Mr. Cleveland has the reputation here of the grossest licentiousness. Judge James Sheldon of the superior court, told me this week that he had direct proof of his recent attempt to seduce a young lady of excellent character; but she becoming aware of his intent, repelled him so spiritedly that he beat a hasty retreat. I have written to the Independent and the Christian Union, and they will play shy of him, though they did not speak of him as irreproachable. Having seen nothing in the Advance to alarm me, I did not write you; but it will do no harm for you to know the facts.

GEORGE F. BALL.

Rev. Mr. Ball is pastor of the Hudson street Baptist church of Buffalo.

The Inter Ocean says: A private letter from a Buffalo pastor of eminence and piety to several religious papers of Chicago and New York warns the editors of those papers, in the common interest of religion and Christian morals, to abstain from any endorsement of the so-called Grover Cleveland's moral or social character, for reasons which, if true, should be made the subject of judicial investigation as promptly as possible. The Inter Ocean is not disposed to encourage a campaign of smut and slander, and does not intend to publish such charges against Governor Cleveland unless they are founded upon proper investigation. If the charges made by the Buffalo minister are true, they can doubtless be substantiated, and will be. In that case the best thing that the men who nominated Cleveland can do is to insist on his declining the nomination. While we thus refuse to give currency to the scandals which are reported against the democratic candidate, it seems evident that he is not the remarkably pure man that it has been claimed he is. Where there is so much smoke there must be some fire, and we feel securely confident from the reports now current that the time is speedily approaching when George William Curtis, the Harpers, Jones, Freeman Clarke and the rest will each feel like hiring an able-bodied man to flagellate them with an old-fashioned blacksnake rawhide for ever having indorsed in any way S. G. Cleveland.

ALBANY ITEMS.

ALBANY, July 21.

Mr. Fred. Willert is confined to his bed with sickness.

Rev. Stevens has moved back to this city and will permanently reside here.

R. D. Murray has started a through stage line between this city and Yaquina.

Mr. Hale has been confined to his room for the past week with rheumatism.

J. A. Gross has been recreating for several days at the mineral springs near Ashland.

Henry McIlwain has just returned from an extended visit to southern Oregon.

Dr. Lewis and family, W. B. Scott, John Henshaw and Mr. Downe of this city are at the Yaquina bay.

The coming firemen's tournament is all the talk and every preparation is being made for a big time.

Simon Sutenbach has gone to California for the benefit of his health. He will remain several weeks.

Albany needs a town clock, and your correspondent would suggest that the Odd Fellows place one on their temple.

The parents of the child left upon Mr. Swank's doorstep reclaimed their little one and all has been peacefully settled.

The 9 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Springer, who was so seriously injured by falling upon a picket fence, is now rapidly recovering.

Everett Arnold, a lad about 9 years of age, was severely hooked by a cow the other evening. He would have been killed had not help been near at hand.

Miss Spilman, one of the teachers in the college has returned from a recreating trip to the Bay. Professor and Mrs. Wyniff, also teachers at the college, will remain several weeks longer.

Some miscreant without fear of the law effected an entrance into Judge Strahan's residence, and removed a valuable gold watch and chain from that gentleman's vest, which was lying on the sofa.

Judge Humphrey has already in his new official capacity performed two marriage ceremonies—last Friday uniting in marriage Commodore Carey and Viola Hamilton, both of this county, and yesterday George Hemis and Adelia Harvey, the former being a resident of Benton county.

JAMES G. BLAINE THE IDEAL PRESIDENT.

New York Tribune, July 7: The Rev. George L. Taylor, pastor of the Embury Methodist Episcopal church, Brooklyn, spoke to a large congregation last evening on "America's Destiny and Duty." He said:

An intelligent comprehension of our future and our responsibility to that future is necessary to make a mighty nation out of a prosperous settlement. Our census for 1880 gives 50,000,000, and, as population doubles in less than every thirty years, in 1910 we shall have 100,000,000; in 1940 200,000,000; in 1970 400,000,000; and so on. And in 116 years from to-day our grandchildren will see 800,000,000 population in the United States—twice the population of India to-day, larger than China, and of what tremendous power! O, what responsibilities for us as a people! One of the qualifications to meet these responsibilities is education. Congress ought to pass a law making an educational qualification necessary to voting. No man is fit to vote unless he can read and write. Political offenses should forfeit political rights. The man who tells or publishes a lie about a man who is running for office ought to be deprived of all privileges.

We have heard of the Monroe doctrine which is that America is to be the master of America. Our flag and citizenship have been in this administration dragged in the dust. Our country was to have been properly represented in the Chili-Peru troubles, but an accident drove out and retired to private life the one man who was able to carry out the policy. What we want is a stronger nationality, and a man who is coming again to make the United States respected and feared by the nations of the earth.

We have got to take a hand in the game of the nations and countries on this side the water. It is in our power to have just the right man in the right place as the president of the United States for the next four years. That man is the embodiment of all that is noble and ideally high, and will do for this country what no other man can. His name is James G. Blaine.

Poker at the Branch.

N. Y. Cor. Detroit Times.

Poker is to be the favorite game at Long Branch this summer; and therein lies a valuable lesson for amateur gamblers, if they will but spell it. There are two big and gorgeous gambling-houses there representing each an investment of not less than $100,000 in property, and a proportionately heavy outlay for maintenance. The pretense has always been that the faro banker had no material advantage over the player except in steadiness, coolness and capital. Now that the gamester prefers poker, played in a party of real or pretended amateurs, the fact comes out clearly that the spider of a costly web does not let the flies buzz cheaply therein. The charges for a private room, the use of cards and a customary quantity of refreshments for four poker players amount for a long evening in a Long Branch club-house to never less than $20.

SUPERINTENDENT OF PETITIONS.

OFFICE OF GRAND SECRETARY, INDEPENDENT ORDER OF GOOD TEMPLARS, EUGENE CITY, Oregon, July 15.

To all Good Templars and the Friends of Temperance—At the last session of the Grand Lodge, I. O. G. T., it was decided to take charge of and circulate the petitions for temperance instruction in [illegible] and as that duty devolves upon me, I have appointed brother Will G. King superintendent of petitions, and he will have entire charge of that work. Yours for humanity,

The Town of Belknap Almost Entirely Destroyed by Fire.

BIG FIRE IN CALIFORNIA GRAIN FIELDS.

The Usual Budget of News from San Francisco—Attempted Suicide at Salem—News Notes from the North.

Belknap Almost Completely Destroyed by Fire.

SALT LAKE, July 21.—Belknap, a Cœur d'Alene town, was burned to the ground about midnight on the 18th. Only five buildings were left, among which were the depot and a large abandoned hotel. The loss is placed at $100,000.

CALIFORNIA.

Nearly $100,000 Worth of Standing Grain Destroyed by Fire.

MODESTO, July 21.—Yesterday morning fire broke out on Colonel Caleb Dorsey's ranch, north of Oakdale. It is supposed the fire was caused by sparks from the pipes of two men who were smoking in the grain fields. Before they noticed it the fire got beyond their efforts to extinguish it. The news was carried to every farm in the neighborhood, and soon hundreds of men were at work, fighting the flames. The flames continued to spread, until by thorough organization of the men they were finally subdued, but only after a tract of land five miles long and three miles wide had been swept over by the destroying element. The fire started at 10 in the morning, and was not gotten under control until 3:30 P. M. It is impossible at this time to tell exactly what the losses amount to. As near as could be learned from insurance men they are as follows: Colonel Dorsey, 1640 acres, loss $30,000; no insurance; also one house and one barn, $800; one of Shippee's combined header and thrasher, and one steam threshing machine, $3000; partly insured. R. Robinson, of Robinson & Carey, 1200 acres; loss, $20,000; insurance, $7 per acre. L. Grainger, 120 acres; loss, $4000; insurance, $10 per acre. Isaac Watson, 200 acres; loss, $16,000; insurance, $7 per acre. Paul and Muncy, 900 acres; loss, $16,000; insurance, $7 per acre. Total loss, $90,100; total insurance, $29,200.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 21.—6000 acres wheat near Oakdale, Stanislaus county, burned; loss estimated at $90,000; insurance, $31,000; fire due to carelessness of men smoking.

Hard Times in California.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 21.—[Special.]—General business throughout California opened with a boom last spring, and it was predicted on all sides that the year would be one of great prosperity, but the flattering prospects of the spring months have not been realized, and business, both in and out of the city, is very dull. The disastrous floods in the southern part of the state, and damaging rains the whole state over, are the main causes of the distress, but it is, in part, in consequence of too exalted hopes in the spring and extravagances growing out of them. Failures are reported by the half dozen almost every day, and while for the most part they are for small amounts, the aggregate is large. While the fruit and grain crops will be considerably short of expectations formed three months ago, they will be above average in quantity, and as soon as the crops are marketed a season of better times will certainly set in. The loss of northern business or the greater part of it, has fallen heavily on the wholesale trade, and it is predicted that it will not fully recover for several years; not, in fact, till the general growth of the country compensates for the large northern business lost.

Joseph Knott's Will.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 21.—The will of Joseph Knott has been filed for probate. The estate consists of real estate located in this city and Portland, Oregon, and personal property worth $42,000. Deceased provides in his will that his former wife's body, buried at Portland, shall be removed and buried beside him here, and leaves $10,000 to his second wife, Elvira; to Mrs. Annie Stevens of Portland, $10,000; to Miss Rosie Martin of Portland, $10,000; to his friend, W. E. Foster of Portland, $10,000; to his sons, Levi Knott and Andrew J. Knott, and his daughter, Elizabeth J. Ladd, all of Portland, deceased leaves $10 each, and bequeaths all residue to his wife, Elvira. John L. Champlin, C. P. Pomeroy and Mrs. Knott are named as executors.

The Sharon Divorce Case.

The Sharon divorce case was resumed this morning. W. H. Porter, undertaker, took the stand for plaintiff. The object of his testimony was to show that the casket in which it was alleged some underclothes of Sharon had been placed by plaintiff was so constructed that it would be impossible to remove a part of it after it was placed under ground, and put in a package. Samuel Foule was the next witness, also for plaintiff. He gave expert testimony on the handwriting, and stated that the marriage contract was signed by Sharon; also that the "My Dear Wife" letters were written by Sharon.

The Sunset Route Again Open.

To-day the Southern Pacific route to New Orleans was opened for traffic, the repairs that have been under way at Vermillionville having been completed. The bridges at Yuma and the Needles have not yet been rebuilt, however, and passengers and freight are ferried across.

Personal.

[Special.]—Otto Von Geldern and wife, Portland, passed Omaha last evening, and will arrive in this city to-morrow.

W. W. Knott will not return to Portland by the next steamer, but remains here several weeks.

Change of Time.

At the request of the Union Pacific the Central Pacific has consented to change its time-table to the old hours. Trains will leave San Francisco for Ogden at 11:40, instead of 7:30. There is no change in the time of arrival here.

The Strangler.

Frank Ernest Hutchings, who strangled his mistress last Thursday evening, waived examination in the police court to-day, and was held to answer without bail before the superior court.

STATE DISPATCHES.

Attempted Suicide at Salem.

SALEM, July 21.—[Special.]—A stranger named P. C. Tabor made a desperate attempt at suicide about 7 o'clock this evening, at the residence of Mr. Leabo, on Church street, in this city. He has been here but a week, and represents the Imperial Publishing company of Chicago, Illinois, for whom he has been selling publications for some nine years. Business since his arrival here has been very dull, and discouragement in financial affairs no doubt led to his attempt at self-destruction. He received a letter from his wife this evening, since which time he appeared more than ever disheartened, and going to his room he swallowed, as supposed, the larger portion of a two ounce bottle of laudanum. Medical help was at once summoned, and appearances indicate that his life will be spared. He shows no desire to live, however, and threatens to complete his work, even if baffled on this occasion. He is 33 years of age, and appears to be a man of excellent education and industrious habits.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

MEXICAN GAYETY.

The "Most Beautiful Drive in the World" and its Daily Pageant.

The Paseo de la Reforma is pronounced by traveled persons to be the most beautiful drive in the world. Beginning at the main plaza in the center of the city and going west to the castle of Chapultepec, the distance is exactly 5450 yards. The "paseo" proper begins at the foot of San Francisco street, the Broadway of Mexico, and the exact line of demarcation is at the equestrian statue of Charles IV. of Spain, which, by the way, is the first bronze cast in this hemisphere, a beautiful work, executed by an Indian artist, Tolsa. Beginning with this statue are six glorietas, or circles, each 400 feet in diameter. In the center of each a statue is to be placed, and others at proper intervals along the way. In the second circle is a magnificent Columbus in marble and bronze, the great explorer standing on the summit of the lofty pedestal, and sitting at the four angles are the Spanish fathers to whom Mexico considers herself indebted for her present civilization—Fray Bartolme de Las Casas, Fray Diego Deza, Fray Pedro de Gante, and Fray Juan Perez de Marchena. In the next circle will soon be placed a Guatimozin, the last Indian emperor of Mexico, which is to cost $100,000 and judging from photographs of the design, will far exceed the others as a work of art. Then a Cortez is to come in the next glorieta, which, as Bishop aptly says, "will stand face to face with Guatimozin, their countrymen now one people, the heroic defender and the heroic conqueror, the two characters of such contradictory traits within themselves, who both acted according to their lights in their day and generation, and but followed the path of inevitable destiny." At the fourth circle, crossing the paseo in the center, will be placed a magnificent arch of liberty, designed to be one of the most imposing structures ever erected by man to the mythical goddess, who in this country is surely blind. The arch will cost $250,000, and is intended to be as durable as the mountains looking down upon it. Each of these glorietas is described by massive marble and granite seats, in continuous crescent form, carved in artistic style. The width of the paseo, including sidewalks, is 170 feet, and is shaded by a double row of ash and eucalyptus trees. Maximilian laid out this Bois and Central park, the afternoon drive promenade of fashionable Mexico, and his wife planned the Zocolo opposite the great cathedral.

About 5 o'clock of every afternoon carriages begin to roll along the paseo, and the pageant continues—a perfect Vanity Fair of the youth, beauty, wealth, and elegance of Mexico—until night drops a curtain on the scene. About sunset the crowd is at its height, the pavements thronged with pedestrians, and the historic drive one crush of carriages, and horsemen. Considering the enormous expense of carriages (which are all imported, the duties alone on an ordinary coach being several hundred dollars), one is astonished at the great number, variety, and elegance of the turnouts. Mexico has long been famed for its horses, a finer collection of which cannot be found anywhere in the world than on this same paseo any afternoon of the week. Mexican horsemen must be seen to be appreciated. Hundreds of them, with weighty spurs, silver-loaded sombreros, astracan, kid, or velvet jackets, tiger skin or silver-trimmed riding breeches, richly embroidered and bedecked saddles, each with a cutlas at his side and huge revolvers in his belt, go curveting about among the carriages on their mettlesome steeds; staring into the willing faces of the senoritas, as is the accepted method of compliment here. But if the equestrian dandy of the country is a spectacle, his young American imitators (and they are numerous) are indeed sights, for they out-Mexican the Mexicans themselves, carrying all their absurd fashions to the most exaggerated extreme. This arming one's self, cap-a-pie, is entirely unnecessary and ridiculous, for mounted soldiers armed to the teeth are stationed in couples all along the paseo to quell any possible disturbance that might arise. It is asserted that one "howling swell" here, with greater surplus of lucre than intellect, paid $5,000 for his saddle alone, not counting the jeweled sword which adorned it, the diamond-handled whip, or other accoutrements. But the money was not wasted after all, for the homesick German who spent a year in making it, retired on the profits and returned jubilantly to fatherland.

The ladies generally dress for the paseo in what we would consider full evening or opera costume pale silks and satins, often even thinner material, without wraps and with no covering for the head, except rarely one with a lace mantilla. Round and round they drive, in one direction, the horsemen cavorting gaily in the other, smiling, flirting, bright eyes flashing, fans fluttering in jeweled fingers—"everybody is is anybody" taking part in this show, the sign and seal of social distinction being set according to the display here made.

A NEEDLE ON ITS TRAVELS.

Taken from a Woman's Body after a Ten Years' Journey.

The New York Herald says: Ten years ago a woman residing in Harlem, while walking across the floor in her stocking feet, stepped upon a needle which entered her right foot between the instep and the joint of the large toe. Several doctors tried to extract the needle, but it seemed to have disappeared. The foot and leg swelled to a great size, and the woman was confined to her bed for upward of three months. Then one evening her daughter rushed up from the grocery store beneath, and said that there were burglars in the house. The mother jumped out of bed, and the burglar had just time to get his heels out of the back window before she had got down the stairs and was after him. When the doctor called that day his patient was about, attending to her work as she had done before she met with the mishap. "That run down the stairs has cured me, I do believe," she said to the doctor, and the latter after that time was a patient less.

It was but a short time afterward, however, that in lacing her shoe a sharp pain was felt at the instep. This lasted for several weeks, and then there was a pricking sensation in the calf of the leg, which a few months later was transferred to the thigh. At the end of a year there was no further annoyance, and the needle was soon forgotten and did not assert itself again for nine years. A couple of weeks ago the woman felt a sharp pain at the point of what the doctors call the ensiform cartilage, which is located just at the lower termination of the breast bone. Hospital surgeons said there was a foreign substance there, and when the needle incident of ten years before was recalled and related to them they advised an operation. The advice was rejected, but on Saturday last the pain became so intense that a physician in East One Hundred and Eleventh street was summoned. Just above and to the right of the umbilicus he found something that evidently did not belong there. He made a half-inch-deep incision about an inch in length, inserted a pair of nippers and drew out, eye foremost, a needle more than an inch long. It had worked its way down some three inches from where the pain was first experienced.

When removed the needle was as smooth and as sharp as the day it was turned out from the factory, but was colored a dark blue, somewhat mottled. The doctor has carried it in his pocket-book since Saturday, but although it has been carefully wrapped up it has rusted very much since it was extracted. A number of stories of the travels of a needle through the human system have been published, but it is said that probably not more than half a dozen are authentic. It would not necessarily cause death if the needle passed through veins, the lungs or even the heart in its erratic peregrinations through the body.

Buffalo Gnats Kill Hogs.

Louisville Post.

Great numbers of hogs have been dying in west Tennessee during this month. Many owners have lost all, while others have lost one-half. It has been noticed by close observers that years when the buffalo gnats are bad an unusual number of hogs die. During last April the buffalo gnats were extremely bad. Horses that were not greased with tar and grease or some kind of gnat oil would die in a day, and cows would suffer if smokes were not made for them or they were not greased with a preventive. Some years these gnats do not appear at all. It has heretofore been thought the buffalo gnats did not affect hogs, but the unusual number dying after the gnats have disappeared has led the owners of hogs to investigate. Those who provided their hogs with smokes or kept them up, it seems have lost but few, and this fact strengthens the theory that the gnats are doing the deadly work. One strange thing about it is that the hogs do not die forthwith as horses or cows, but a month or two elapses before they die or get sick. A raiser of hogs in the adjoining county of Lauderdale cut a hog's head open the other day and found a large number of gnats in his head. This hog was affected like all the others that have been dying.

AN ORACLE OF THE P. R.

He Tells how Sullivan may Regain the People's Good Opinion, which was so Recently Lost.

New York World, July 9.

A dapper little man in a natty blue flannel suit and a pearl Derby sat on the forward upper deck of an iron steamboat yesterday as she ploughed the bay on her course for the domain of John Y. McKane and clam chowder. His face was tanned by exposure and his black eyes twinkled merrily as he discoursed to a number of friends on the merits of prize fighting in general and John L. Sullivan in particular. The little man spoke with a cockney accent, and every word that passed his lips was eagerly taken in by his attentive audience.

He twirled a small blackthorn stick around his fingers and seemed to the ordinary observer to be a dry goods clerk enjoying the Sunday outing. But there was a litheness and muscular power apparent that on second sight showed that the supposition was fallacious, and then the attentive attitudes of his listeners proved that they realized that he was an oracle on matters pertaining to the ring. Outsiders drew near and listened and they were also satisfied that he was fully versed in the intricacies of the fistic art. His theme was the recent fiasco of Sullivan and Mitchell, but he digressed at times and related anecdotes of other fighters that caused great merriment.

"I only blame Sullivan for one thing," said the little man, "and that is that he did not then and there announce, or cause to be announced, that he would quit drink, go into training and meet Mitchell at an early date and allow everybody to witness the match free of charge. That would have excused his plight and made the people think more of him than they had previously. Why, I tell you," and he emphasized the last sentence, "that the people have every reason to be proud of the big fellow. He is the best man who ever entered a ring. Talk about your hard hitters, why Jack Grant, Sam Hurst, the Staley Bridge Infant, or Tom King, were not in it with him. Say! he'd make them look like the outside of a sausage. He never needs a night key to get in the house. He can punch a panel out of any door. But he got too big for the occasion, and it really took that drunk to bring him to his senses. Now, I remember that John Goulding had a bricklayer training at the old Prince of Wales grounds in London who was a rank quitter, and Jack set him drunk one day, and from that out the man was dead game. A drunk is a good thing in its place. Well, as I was saying, Sullivan will get sense now. He will go into training and prepare to meet Mitchell, whom he acknowledges to be the best man he has met yet.

"They may not meet until September, but when they do they will give everybody a great show, make no mistake. If the affair is managed rightly the polo grounds will be engaged and thrown open to the public, all but a reserved space to hold enough people to pay the expenses of the show. Then Sullivan would redeem his reputation and no matter what the result would be Mitchell would continue to enjoy his present good name."

Just then the boat ran up to the iron pier at West Brighton and a rush was made to disembark. The little man and his companions remained behind and took their time in reaching the shore. As they strolled up the iron pier the little man was constantly saluted and accosted by dashing looking young men, one of whom, in reply to a reporter's query, said: "Him! Why, he's George Fulljames, the feller what's going ter lick Dempsey when they meet this month!"

WASHINGTON BRICKS.

Over One Hundred Million Made Every Year—Different Sizes and Why.

Washington Star.

All the sidewalks of the city of Washington, with few exceptions, are paved with bricks, about 3,000,000 of which are required annually for extending and repairing these pavements. There are six yards producing bricks by the machine process and thirteen by the hand method. The total product exceeds 1,000,000,000 bricks annually, a portion of which are shipped to other points in the surrounding country and along the Potomac river and the Atlantic coast, Norfolk, Va., not possessing clay suitable for the manufacture of bricks, buying quite largely.

There is a diversity in the size of American building bricks in different sections of the country, and often there is a variation in the size in the same locality, the measurements for common bricks ranging from 7¾ to 9¼ inches in length, 3¾ to 4½ inches in width, and from 2 to 2½ inches in thickness, which difference is due principally to the nature of the clay used. Fat or strong clays, on account of the large amount of albumen which they contain, absorb a great quantity of water in tempering, and as the bricks made from this class of clay dry they become much smaller, and when placed in the kiln and burned their size is further reduced by the action of heat; bricks made from this variety of clay that were of a large size when moulded are usually small and undersized when they come from the kiln. This is, however, no impediment to their strength, the principal objection being that the cost is materially increased on account of a large number being required. Meager or weak clays absorb but little water during the process of tempering, and consequently the bricks made from this class of clays do not shrink much in either drying or burning, and thus are of a larger size than those made from fat clays. Both hand made and machine made bricks are similarly affected in size from these causes.

The bricks made for the Washington market are made from that valuable belt of clay which extends along the eastern portion of Pennsylvania, down through Delaware, Maryland, the District of Columbia and the northern portion of Virginia, which belt contains the finest grade of loamy clay that is to be found on this continent. The bricks produced from this clay are of a superior quality, and are noted for their great hardness and cherry-red color. The pressed bricks manufactured in Baltimore and Philadelphia from the belt of clay which has just been described are especially famous.

The brick makers of the District of Columbia have for a number of years past been using moulds of various sizes, but recently the authorities have been enforcing the ordinance of October 30, 1820, which requires that all moulds used for making plain bricks within the city limits at Washington shall be "stamped as correct by the sealer of weights and measures, and be 9¼x4½ and 2¼ inches in the clear."

Oregonian Railway Lease.

Dundee Advertiser, July 4.

The initiatory step has already been taken for testing the validity of the lease of the Oregonian railway. The summons or complaint by the Oregonian Railway Company was served upon the Oregon Railway and Navigation Company last week. In order to bring up the question of the legality of the lease in its simplest form, the only claim advanced is the payment of the rent due at Whitsunday. The court in which the action will be tried in the first instance is the United States district court for Oregon and Washington territory, of which the Hon. M. P. Deady is the judge. There may be an appeal to the circuit court, in which Mr. Justice Field sits along with Mr. Deady. The first decision by Judge Deady will be looked for with intense interest by the vast multitude of British investors in American railway securities, who are concerned to know whether legal undertakings deliberately entered upon, solemnly ratified, and duly fulfilled for a term of years can be suddenly repudiated at the pleasure of one of the contracting parties on the ground of some mysterious doctrine of ultra vires and contrariety to public policy. Any one who will turn to "Poor's Manual of American Railways" will see that it is full of leases. There must be hundreds of leased railway lines in America, and if this Oregonian lease can be broken it will be the signal for a general repudiation of all inconvenient railway leases on the other side of the Atlantic. Hence the vast importance of this particular case. Judge Deady has fortunately a high reputation as a just, upright and painstaking judge, and the Oregon code of laws, under which the case will be tried, was drafted by himself. In considering the special question before him he will have in view its far reaching consequences, and he will doubtless endeavor to base his decision on such broad and universal principles of equity as will command the assent and approval both of the American and British peoples.

Voters Born Since Gettysburg Fight.

Philadelphia Times.

How swiftly time flies. It seems but yesterday when Meade and Lee were locked in battle at Gettysburg to those who shared the agony of suspense that then prevailed throughout the land, but Mr. Hensel, of the Lancaster Intelligencer, stated a startling and obvious truth when he said, in his recent address before the Editorial association at Gettysburg, that "the great presidential struggle now pending will be decided by the votes of men born since the memorable events of July, 1863, that took place here." A new generation of voters has been born and grown to citizenship since the battle of Gettysburg, and they are now strong enough to decide a national contest. Truly, the war will soon be a matter of history, as it is now to all the students of the world.

A GOOD COMPARISON.

The Rev. William Roulatt, a well-known Methodist clergyman, residing at Naples, draws the following amusing, but apt comparison between Dr. C. McLane's Vermifuge, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., and a ferret.

"A ferret when placed at the entrance of a rat hole, enters the aperture, travels along the passage, seizes upon the rat, exterminates his existence and draws the animal's defunct carcass to the light. And in like manner have I found Dr. C. McLane's Vermifuge to operate upon worms, those dreadful and dangerous tormentors of children. This remedy, like the ferret, enters the aperture of the mouth, travels down the gullet, hunts round the stomach and lays hold of the worms, shakes the life out of the reptiles, sweeps clean their den, and carries their carcasses clear out of the system. This, at least, has been the effect of the Vermifuge upon my children."

THE INFLUENCES

As the campaign starts off it bids fair to be partisan to the knife, so to speak. The New York papers which have shifted from an attitude of independence to ultra-democratic ideas are the meanest of all that come to hand for their partisan unfairness and utter disregard of reason. They spare nothing to show up Cleveland as a political saint and Blaine as an arch enemy of all that is desirable. The expressions are of the old cut and dried sort, and to read one line is to get a [illegible] to all that is to follow in any political article in the Times, World, Post or Herald. It looks like a great array, but when the state is canvassed it is found that there are four or five papers for Blaine to one for Cleveland including several prominent journals like the Buffalo Express which supported Cleveland for governor, and since it is the state outside of New York that always gives the republican majority, this city flop of newspapers that have been on the fence for years and of no party service need not alarm any republican. There are now more Tribunes sold than any other paper in the city except perhaps, the Sun, which is certainly not anxious for the success of Cleveland. The Herald is dropping off sadly from its old place of leading newspaper, so far as its city circulation is concerned, since its fight with the news company, and the Times is not in demand as it used to be. Therefore, the newspaper influence taking the entire state into the calculation, still has a preponderance of weight on the republican side.

The republicans, too have the best speakers, and all the men of great reputation are still left to them, as was shown by the ratification meetings lately held in New York and Boston. At the New York meeting Hon. William M. Evarts led off with a most masterly campaign effort, followed by General Hawley, and the influence of these two speeches will widen like the ripples around a stone cast in still water until the sentiments expressed by these great leaders will be heard everywhere in the land. These two meetings were, together, a grand beginning.

In Boston Henry Cabot Lodge who tried his best in the convention to secure the nomination of Edmunds, led off in a speech comparing the parties, and he closed with this reference to one who worked with him in the Convention at Chicago:

"Let me read to you a very brief definition of the democratic party which I had the honor to hear delivered by one of the most distinguished of the delegates on the floor of the republican convention at Chicago.

"'We are confronted with the democratic party very hungry and, as you may well believe, very thirsty [laughter]—a party without a single distinct principle, a party without any distinct national policy which it dares present to the country; a party which fell from power as a conspiracy against human rights, and now attempts to sneak back into power as a conspiracy for spoils and plunder.' [Applause.]

"Gentlemen the speaker of these words was Mr George William Curtis [Long continued applause and hisses]. I don't see, gentlemen that the case has substantially changed since these words were uttered. [Applause.] They are the same two parties and the questions with which they are called upon to deal are the questions of the civil service, of the tariff and of the currency. You can judge of their capacity to deal with these questions by their past."

Governor Robinson of Massachusetts, for whose companionship the bolters longed, made a warm speech for his old friend Blaine, and Senators Dawes and Hoar were on hand in happy mood for the work before them. Senator Hoar paid his respects to President Eliot of Harvard and "the gentle hermits of Cambridge whose eyes are 'microscopes which can see a blemish on the skin but cannot take in a fair landscape or a healthy human figure.' These men he said, had taught American young men to be ashamed of the history of their country. They say that since the war there has been no time when a young man knew how he could honorably serve his country. The Harvard professors preached similar doctrines before the war and during the war. The men whom they are now eager to praise they censured, abused and condemned when they were in public life. As they erect their mausoleum, Senator Hoar said, they should write over it the inscription 'Our fathers stoned this prophet and we build his sepulchre.'" He also pointed out the inconsistency of these civil service reformers who are going to join hands with the men who repudiated Pendleton who are about to abandon the party which made the civil service act a possibility. The civil service plank of the republican platform which President Eliot sneers at Mr Hoar said was written by George William Curtis. The castigation which the senior senator for Massachusetts inflicted on the Harvard bolters they will not soon forget.

These meetings were of a size and quality to be felt all through the east, and in fact, their influence will not stop until the end of the campaign. It was no exaggeration to say, as was said immediately after the nomination of Mr Blaine, that the feeling all over the country among the voters was as undeniably in favor of him as was the sentiment in the nominating convention. It is swelling into a great wave, which finds its first really notable swell in these two meetings. It will roll across the country and be met on the Rocky mountains by a Pacific wave strong enough to dash against the highest peak, and when the two waves roll back each will uncover broad fields of republican votes, with unbroken majorities in the north, and extending farther south than ever before.

Another gambling speculator has come to grief—Sylvester Everett of the banking-house of Everett & Weddell at Cleveland Ohio. Until recently Everett was treasurer of the city, and while in that position he gambled with the city's money, and when the time finally came for him to turn the office over to his successor he had to use the cream of the bank's assets to fill the hole his speculations had made. Two years ago he was the republican candidate for congress, and during the night before the election he spent $13,000 in the saloons of the city and was beaten the next day by 2,539 majority for the democratic candidate. His gambling operations crippled another bank seriously, until at last he has been driven out of all the financial positions he had held, having like Ferdinand Ward, ruined his associates.

The president's constitutional objections to the Fitz John Porter bill proves to be a little vexatious to two of Porter's principal opponents, General Logan and Secretary Lincoln. Logan had already procured the passage of a bill to restore Captain Kirby a protege of his own. The president had signed the bill, but now refuses to make the appointment. Mr Lincoln was interested in a similar bill for the relief of Surgeon Pope, which was passed at the close of the session, but this bill the president has been obliged to veto for consistency's sake.

The prohibition national convention assembles to-morrow. Among the men who are willing to be nominated for president are Dr McDonald of San Francisco, and our dispatches announce that the doctor promises, if he is nominated, to head the campaign fund with a round million. Here is the man the democrats were seeking and did not find—a man with a barrel, and, moreover a man who is willing to tap it. It is said that the doctor did not roll his barrel into the democratic convention.

The New York Mail and Express says "we are glad to find so zealous and aggressive a Blaine organ as the Philadelphia Press refuses to publish scandalous attacks on Gov Cleveland. There is great danger that the present campaign may become more personal and venomous than any we have had for many years. It is well that all decent journals should early take strong ground against all mean and indecent political personalities."

Cleveland was not nominated on account of his having been a hangman, it was because nobody knew what he had been, and the hope was that nobody would find out.

INDIAN EDUCATION

In the various reports upon the progress of Indian education by the interior department and by correspondents for the press, great stress has been laid upon the fact that the attempt to educate the Indians is not confined to a knowledge of books but that the effort is being made to give him a practical education that will enable him to supply his own wants by his own labor. This has given the name of "training schools" to the flourishing institutions at Carlisle, Pennsylvania and Forest Grove in this state. This feature is of the utmost importance as many of the Indians will soon have their land allotted to them and without a training in the manual arts their efforts to live by the cultivation of the soil will be unsuccessful. But there is another feature of the present system which has in it the "promise and potency" of perhaps even greater good. We refer to the fact that now the children of both sexes are being trained and educated together at these schools.

The attempt to educate the Indians in this country is by no means of recent date. Dartmouth college the fourth of the New England colleges in chronological order was established, as it is well known for this purpose in the year 1769 and for many years it had quite a large number of Indian boys in its classes. But it failed to accomplish the full purpose of its founder because there were no educated Indian girls for its graduates to marry. Returning to their tribes as the most of them did, they were compelled virtually to lapse into the barbarous state of the women they took for wives and their education was soon lost in the mass of ignorance and immorality in which they spent the remainder of their lives. Their children were in turn the same dusky brood as that from which they had for a short period emerged. The practical training the habits of thrift cleanliness and virtue which the boys acquire at Forest Grove, for example would not be permanent if there were not trained for them in the same habits of civilized and virtuous life, girls that may become their wives. It is this coeducation, or rather, the possibility which the present system affords for the establishment of clean and frugal homes for their future existence that is to be the great saving factor in the education of Indian youths. And while the attention of these students should not be diverted from the proper work of the school by thoughts of love they should be given at least suitable hints as to the necessity of forming so far as possible matrimonial alliances which will conserve the benefits they there obtain.

About eighteen hundred years ago Agricola established schools in Britain, for the education of some of our ancestors, upon very much the same plan as that which we are now pursuing with reference to our Indian tribes and those schools contributed much to their civilization and prosperity. From the meager account which his son in law, Tacitus, gives of his humane policy while governor of Britain it would appear that he provided more abundant opportunities for a primitive education of the natives of that island than our government has yet provided for its wards. It was a slow process by which the Britons merged from barbarism. But that was a slow age of the world. The conditions of human nature, however are essentially the same in all ages and the domestic virtues have always been a very powerful factor in civilization. Our government has at last adapted its efforts to the essential conditions of human life in its attempts to solve the Indian problem and it is only necessary now that these schools should be enlarged and multiplied so that all the children of the Indians may be trained in the habits of civilized life and be enabled to maintain through the influence of clean and pure domestic relations the vantage ground to which their education raises them.

The Chicago Tribune wants to know of Charles Francis Adams, Jr, whether the Union Pacific is going to continue the policy of fighting the efforts of states to tax its lands and of billeting its "agents and emissaries" on the people as civil servants in Nebraska. It claims that every city, town and county list of officials, even to the boards of education are manned by Union Pacific employes and officers. When the state of Nebraska attempts to exert its power through the legislature to regulate the rates of fare on the branch lines in the state the legislature is prevented from acting by the clever maneuvers of the gentlemen who draw one salary from the people of the state as legislators and another from the railroad as its employes attorneys or what not. Wherever the Union Pacific runs its main line or any branch through Nebraska there you will find a continuous chain of Union Pacific judges.

"A Practical Irishman" writes to the New York Herald that one result of the dynamite scare in England is to prevent Irishmen from finding employment there. Every summer thousands of Irish peasants and laborers cross the Channel and find work in the English harvest fields which, though not highly paid is more profitable employment than they can find at home, and helps many a poor man to make both ends meet. Since these dynamite barbarities he says, English farmers have turned away hundreds of Irishmen saying they would rather let their crops rot than employ one of them. He found the same spirit he says in other branches of industry, and thus the one visible effect of the dynamite policy is to make life harder for Irishmen for whom it was hard and bitter enough before.

The London Times supports Mr Gladstone as against the lords in the extension of political franchise, and in doing so follows the real sentiment of Great Britain. At the session of parliament, to be called in October, the franchise bill will again be passed by the commons and the lords will probably then give way reluctantly but gracefully to the public will. It is absurd to suppose democracy gaining ground as it is in Great Britain, the house of lords should continue to maintain a prerogative that of the veto, which the sovereign has abnegated, but the house of Lords as an institution will be retained, and may and might prove useful instead of being as now, merely obstructionist.

The Chinese minister now visiting New York is giving some advice to his countrymen and playing the modern Confucius generally. He tells the Chinese to keep out of American politics, and, as matters look now, they will keep out. They certainly will not get in under the wing of Mr Blaine. This modern Confucius also advises them to make what money they can and then to go home to China. He tells them that they will never get over the feeling that they are among barbarians in this country or words to that effect—which is why they should be kept out of American politics if not out of America.

A young lady in Racine was recently fatally burned while riding with a man who was smoking a cigar. In some manner the fire from his cigar communicated to her clothing and the cloth being of a peculiarly inflammable texture she was soon wrapped in flames. Her companion made an effort to extinguish the fire but was unsuccessful and the girl was fatally burned. If the young men must smoke while riding with ladies the ladies ought to provide themselves with fire proof clothing.

The Boston Globe editorially says: "There is no doubt that the business situation is improving. The clearest headed merchants and bankers agree that the tide has turned and that steady improvement may be confidently expected." With our present most excellent railroad facilities, the good times ought to reach Portland very soon.

Mr M. E. Lewis of Idaho becomes telegraphically notorious for the simple reason that he sends to Castle Garden for a wife. He wants one under 30 years of age and willing to work on his ranch in Idaho. It might be suggested to such a one, as "a pointer," that she could come to Portland and find plenty to do without placing herself under any obligations to Mr Lewis. Good servant girls are always in demand and it would seem that Mr Lewis is looking for a servant more than for a wife, since he makes her ability to work the chief requirement.

Prof. D McGregor Means opposes government telegraphy in an article in the North American Review, but he shows that he lacks the intelligence necessary to make his opinions of any value by saying that this government in the management of the postal service is not a success.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST.

Dayton Chronicle: John Williams charged with horse stealing, was taken before Justice Drake on the 18th and waived examination. He was held in $1,000 bonds and in default was recommitted to jail. He wants to be considered a tough, and boasts of having been arrested once before for stabbing a man.

Seattle Post Intelligencer: Seven hundred and fifty nine women registered before the late election and it is safe to say that 700 voted. They displayed as much interest in the principles at stake in the candidates and in the exercise of their new privilege as did the men, and if anything displayed more interest. They were earnest, active intelligent and conscientious, strong and determined. They labored discreetly and were treated fairly, and honorably by the men, their going to and from the polls being viewed just as we viewed their going shopping to entertainments or elsewhere—as a matter of strict and unquestioned propriety.

Eastern Oregon.

The railroad track has been completed to the summit, about ten miles from Union.

Haying has commenced in earnest in Union county and crops are looking encouraging.

A severe rainstorm visited Baker City and the Powder river valley on Sunday doing considerable damage.

Mountain Sentinel: From ex County Clerk W. T. Wright we learn that the books of this county show an indebtedness in outstanding warrants to the extent of $58,434 13. These are astonishing figures and will surprise many who read them but they are a true exhibition of facts of indebtedness. This is not all. Interest has to be added to the above which in a large number of instances has been accruing for two or three years and as high as ten will make it foot up in the neighborhood of $15,000 more making in round numbers, a total of $70,000. This county is also behind to the extent of several thousand dollars to the state. This is an alarming state of affairs, and cannot fail to impress upon the public mind and we hope that of the county officials more than ever that economy must be the guiding star of our present county administration.

The following summary of the crop situation in Umatilla county is obtained from the Weston Leader: The harvest is almost at hand. The acreage of fall grain is small but the yield per acre is up to Umatilla's average. Even the spring grain looks well and gives good promise of an abundant yield. The many hundreds of acres of corn planted in this vicinity looks well and will doubtless give a good return for the labor bestowed upon it. If the prices of last year prevail, the happy possessors of extensive corn fields will indeed reap a golden harvest. The amount of wheat for export this year will be comparatively small, probably not more than an eighth of that shipped last year. From present indications prices will be fair, the opening figure being about 50 cents per bushel. It seems that the amount of wheat raised in the county this year will not more than supply the demand for seed and home consumption. The immense stretches of summer fallow that are everywhere visible will require many hundred bushels for seeding purposes. The grist mills need no small quantity to keep them busy. Thus the local demand will be about sufficient for the small crop. But unfortunately many farmers will be compelled to sell as soon as the market opens to secure money to meet the urgent demands of bills laid over from last year or contracted during the past season. This forced sale may leave a shortage that will with difficulty, be supplied later in the season. While it is true that the future is glorious with the tinted rainbow of promise and that next year will probably see the biggest (and perhaps the best) crop of wheat ever known in Umatilla county, it cannot but be regretted that the acreage this season was so unreasonably small. The lesson thus learned by a bitter experience may come too late to save many from financial embarrassment.

Montana.

The president and several other officials of the Union Pacific will arrive in Butte within a few days on a visit of inspection.

One hundred head of horses were stolen from Teton valley settlers last Friday night. From information received it is thought they were run off by white men.

During the month of June Butte shipped 3,116,000 pounds of copper ore and 480,000 pounds of matte, an increase of over 10 per cent as compared with the shipments for the corresponding month of last year.

A man named Foohan is in trouble at Butte for attempting to shoot an officer who wanted to arrest him. Foohan has the reputation of being a desperado and it is said that he is one of the Foohans who were at Arkansaw Springs last year and killed three or four or five men riding in a carriage on a public street.

The annual sun dance at the Blackfoot agency will be held within a few weeks and some fears are entertained that if they do not secure relief before that time a general outbreak will occur. Nothing prevents it now but the weak and helpless condition of the Indians. But this festival may so stimulate them that they will seek to wreak vengeance upon innocent parties for the injustice done them by the government.

The Sunday School Association of Montana territory will meet in convention at Helena September 23 and 24. The opening session will be on Monday evening September 22 at the Presbyterian church. The session of Tuesday the 23 and the day session of Wednesday the 24th will be held in the same (Presbyterian) church. The closing session on Wednesday evening will be held in the new Baptist church. This convention occurs between the meetings of the Baptist and Methodist territorial conferences, and speakers from both these bodies will take part in the proceedings of the territorial Sunday school convention. Other speakers will also be present. Delegates from all parts of the territory will attend, and a pleasant and profitable time is expected.

Tuesday the 15th inst one of the most terrific hailstorms that ever visited any country swept through between Helena and Silver City and across the the northern part of Prickly Pear valley. At Three Mile this side of Silver City it came upon a number of freight teams and before the drivers realized their danger one of them was knocked off of a mule by an immense hailstone and so stunned that it was some time before he recovered. The men took refuge under the wagons, or they think they would have been killed. The teams were with great difficulty kept from stampeding. The track of the storm was about a mile wide and all birds and small animals exposed to its fury were killed. Crops were ruined wherever they lay in the storm's pathway.

Idaho.

Thompson Falls Index: In the eastern suburbs of town there is a grave in which is buried the mother of Spokane Jim, the Indian killed here by Hy Parry, and on the 30th of May last some tender hearted person put flowers on the little wooden cross at the head, unwittingly strewing garlands on the last resting place of an American queen. She was the wife of a Flathead chief and her remains were interred four years ago she dying while encamped with a portion of her tribe on a fishing excursion at the falls. It is said that by reason of all that remained mortal of his mother being left there Spokane Jim claimed the ranch on which the town is located as his own and this proprietary feeling prompted him to cut the bight [illegible] which resulted in his death. Spokane Jim's grave is below the falls and that of his mother above. So that here again is verified Whittier's couplet that the white man builds cities over Indian graves.

THAT CAR LOAD OF SALMON

New York July 11

To the Editor of the Oregonian:

In your issue of 25th ult occurs a dispatch concerning an interview by your special correspondent in New York, with Mr Blackford, relating to the salmon business. Mr Blackford, according to your issue says that of the car shipped by Gammans & Co from The Dalles Or about one fourth was received in good condition, the rest being condemned by the fish inspector. He also says they lost $2000. The shippers did not lose $2000 on the contrary a few dollars will cover the loss and so far as the condition of the fish on arrival here is concerned the fish were in every way perfect, and not a pound was in bad condition as can easily be proved. Mr Blackford to the contrary notwithstanding.

Again in your issue of the 30th ult, occurs a communication from Messrs Seufert Bros The Dalles Or, in which they reiterate the communication of the 25th ult as regards the shipment made by Gammans & Co, and give a vivid description of the poor way they claim this unfortunate car was packed and shipped. Gammans & Co's car was numbered 4150 Merchants' Dispatch Transportation Co, Daily Line and arrived here June 7.

Car No 478, M D T Co Daily Line met with an accident on the N P R R was repacked sent to St Paul and from there to New York where it arrived June 21 in bad order. The car was consigned to Mr Blackford who refused [illegible] receive it. [illegible] fish inspected [illegible] to the chief [illegible]. This car was shipped by Messrs Seufert [illegible] The Dalles [illegible] books [illegible] show [illegible] York [illegible].

I [illegible] agree with Messrs Seufert Bros when they [illegible] caught at The Dalles [illegible] salmon [illegible] the first car [illegible] Or [illegible] 25th of June [illegible].

Please instruct your New York correspondent in future to [illegible] Mr [illegible] before telegraphing to Portland anything reflecting on Messrs Gammans & Co or the problem of salmon shipments. You will be given reliable information something you have not so far received.

Please give this communication a place in your columns in justice to all. SAMUEL T SKIDMORE
Consignee for Gammans & Co

A Kiss not a Legal Consideration

Pall Mall Gazette

What is a kiss. The question can only be answered by experience so [illegible] But [illegible] a [illegible] in the Lambeth county court yesterday to say what a kiss is not. It is no legal consideration. A surgeon in Lambeth kissed a worthy grocer's wife. The husband valued the kiss at £5 and the surgeon gave him an I O U for that amount. A month after date an action was brought on this document but the judge promptly ruled that there was no consideration and gave a verdict for the defendant. Perhaps the lady was in court and the judge may have been influenced by that. For even the poets admit that there are kisses and kisses. The interesting question is whether yesterday's judgment was meant to lay down a general principle or whether every case must be decided on its own merits.

ARREST FOR ADULTERY.—John Crock [illegible] his wife arrested on Sunday morning on a [illegible] was arraigned in Justice Greene's [illegible] on a charge of threatening to kill his wife. It seems that Mrs Crock left [illegible] on the glorious Fourth and came to [illegible] Crock came up later and a Mrs Terry [illegible] called at her house and stated that [illegible] and Mrs Crock and her alleged paramour [illegible] would kill her. When Crock was asked [illegible] he witness any questions he [illegible] the first one he asked was "are you [illegible]" Mr Hewett objected and the [illegible] bridled up and said "that's a pretty [illegible]" Crock, who seems a sort of [illegible] fellow, said he had no intention of hurting [illegible] that even now he loved her better than [illegible] he had worked in a logging camp [illegible] was spitting blood every morning as [illegible] was nearly gone. The woman did [illegible] reciprocate his affection and it seems [illegible] proving the truthfulness of the old song

[illegible]—Judge Smith yesterday in the [illegible] court granted a decree of divorce in the [illegible] J Lyons vs. Talbot L Lyons and he [illegible] awarded the custody of her three [illegible] Maud E aged 6 Mary E [illegible] aged [illegible] 3. The papers in the case show [illegible] Mrs. Lyons were married at Silverton [illegible] February 1876. The divorce was [illegible] upon the showing of Mrs Lyons that her [illegible] failed to provide for herself and her children [illegible] possessed of an estate in [illegible] $10 000 which required him simply [illegible]. She complained also that her husband [illegible] in a cruel and inhuman manner, ac[illegible] being false to her marriage vows and [illegible] to kill her. [illegible] A DROWNED MAN.—It is supposed [illegible] who fell from the steamship Oregon [illegible] high and was drowned was one Leopold [illegible] who arrived here from Missoula [illegible]. On Sunday he was drinking freely [illegible] a state of intoxication had his effects [illegible] steamer. As his description compares [illegible] of the man found to Captain [illegible] the steamer it is generally sup[illegible] the man who fell overboard

[illegible] OF WHEAT.—A. B. Johnson of the Cen[illegible], who has a finely kept farm at Reedville [illegible] exhibited to an OREGONIAN reporter as a [illegible] the products of his place a stool of wheat [illegible] well grown twenty seven ears. Every [illegible] well filled, and one of them meas[illegible] inches in length. The wheat is very near [illegible] the reaper. Mr Johnson visited his [illegible] Sunday, and reports all his crops uninjured [illegible] of the past week

[illegible].—James Casey who has been [illegible] W. H. Marshall agent for the Chicago [illegible] & St. Paul short line has received a [illegible] appointment from A. D Charlton general [illegible] agent of the Northern Pacific [illegible] made many friends for the St Paul [illegible] his departure is regretted by them

[illegible] PASSENGERS.—Passed Heron yesterday [illegible] J. A. Cottrell, Mrs Cottrell, J [illegible] Jr, R. A. Cottrell, Jr., G. A. Borden [illegible] G. Lambeson, Mrs Mary Stevies [illegible] Chas F Shea, Albert Urban, J [illegible] Mrs. Scott, W. C. Owen and wife G

[illegible]—Weather prophets à la Vennor, [illegible] local fame, predict that, as to-day [illegible] in the phase of the moon, Jupiter [illegible] his house until our farmers [illegible] some of the biggest crops [illegible] harvested in Oregon.

OPENED TO LA GRANDE.—Yesterday the Baker City branch of the O R & N road was opened for freight and passenger traffic to La Grande. A train connecting with the Atlantic express reaches La Grande at 8.55 A M. West bound the train leaves La Grande at 4 P M connecting at Umatilla with the Pacific express. Twenty one hours from Portland to La Grande seems very short, even now that we have become used to railroads. Stations between Meacham and La Grande are Kamela six miles and Hilgard seventeen miles east of Meacham. Kamela is the Indian for pitch pine. The end of the track is now over the summit of Pyle canyon 328 miles east of Portland and heading down into Antelope valley which leads into Powder river valley. There is a gap of only twenty nine miles between the end of the track and Baker City. A station has been established on the summit of Pyle canyon called Tecacet (pronounced Tal ib cos sot) which means the highest ground.

DID NOT GO.—The Tivoli Opera Company did not get off for Victoria yesterday afternoon though baggage had been packed and the people were at the dock. One report has it that Walter Keyes and two or three of the principal singers held out for [illegible] the trial of F A Howard [illegible] come up this week, but it was a diff[illegible] report of a legal [illegible] while a third report [illegible] vouched for as true is that a $400 guarantee which had been promised from Victoria [illegible] yesterday morning by express. [illegible] Some handbills were distributed late in the afternoon announcing a performance of Martha in the evening. There was a light attendance and a tame sort of a performance. As the company expected to be gone two weeks they had not rehearsed any new operas and will probably fill in the week at the Tivoli with repetition of former productions.

SAN FRANCISCO EAST VIA PORTLAND.—By the State of California which arrived Sunday night there were forty four passengers booked for the Northern Pacific. Forty were destined for points east of St Paul and four for Europe. It is reported that among the passengers were three English noblemen traveling incognito. The reason for concealing their identity is easily conceived. They had heard that Queenstown of the [illegible] of the three rival lines between St Paul and Chicago and felt well assured if ever these [illegible] got onto them each would have to take a separate rail and [illegible] the city of unusual conventions. But as they wanted to travel in company they just slipped through the town.

UMATILLA COUNTY FARMING.—A gentleman who has just made a tour over a great part of Umatilla county said to a reporter of this paper that at least four acres of ground have been summer fallowed this season to every acre now in grain. A large percentage of the season's yield will be required for seeding this fall. Referring to Hugh Vaughn's farm on the Umatilla reservation which has been mentioned so often recently he said that Vaughn has [illegible] acres of the finest wheat oats and barley in the country.

THE TEACHERS EXCURSION.—There are 100 ladies and gentlemen in the excursion of the National Teachers association due here Friday. Of these about fifty will go to Alaska. Nothing is known by the railroad officials here relative to their movements after reaching Portland but it is likely they will do the Willamette valley, Astoria and the Sound. Mr A D Charlton general western passenger agent of the Northern Pacific goes to Wallula tomorrow to meet the party.

HELD FOR ADULTERY.—Mrs Sarah J Crock and William B Bullington arrested on a charge of adultery had a preliminary examination before Justice Davis yesterday and each was held to answer before the grand jury in $500. The woman gave bonds and was released but Bullington was unable to procure bondsmen.

SUGGESTIONS ABOUT A LIVE STOCK SHOW

It has been suggested to The Oregonian that Portland is ripe now for an exhibition of blooded stock. In the first place there is a good locality for such an exhibition in the new driving park two miles below the city. The Kalama extension runs within fifty feet of the grounds and the railroad company will run trains every half hour if necessary. It takes just ten minutes to make the trip from Morris[illegible] street to the grounds. Portland has enough people who take an interest in fine stock to insure a [illegible] show sufficient to pay expenses provided the affair is properly managed and there is certain to be a good attendance from neighboring cities.

The Driving Park Association is an incorporated institution with men of financial standing at the head and the exhibition ought to be given under their auspices. Programmes for three days could be arranged. For instance on the first day [illegible] cattle and sheep second day blooded trotters and running [illegible] divided in classes third day draught horses hogs and poultry. Races could be arranged for each day and thus add interest to the exhibition.

Not only should the show be for this year but it should be made the forerunner of annual exhibitions of the same kind. All that is necessary is to secure competent disinterested judges and let premiums which shall be awarded be given on merit alone. With honest impartial awards an association could set up and maintain standards which would have recognition among buyers of fine stock throughout the northwest coast.

One practical view of such an enterprise is that it would receive encouragement from stock raisers throughout the state in that when they bring stock to this city for exhibition they would have unequaled facilities for selling. It is believed that a [illegible] stock show such as outlined above can be inaugurated and made successful with little effort.

BLESSING ST VINCENT'S BELL.—Saturday afternoon the bell presented to St Vincent's hospital by Rev T Verhaar formerly of East Portland [illegible] was blessed with the solemn rites of the Catholic church. Right Reverend Bishop Junger of Vancouver officiating. He was assisted by Father Gibney, chaplain of the hospital, Fathers Glorieux, Orth and O Dea, and Father Adelhelm prior of the Benedictine monastery at Mount Angel. The sanctuary where the ceremony took place presented an imposing appearance the altars being brilliantly illuminated and decorated. St Vincent de Paul and St Anne's societies were present together with a large number of citizens. The ceremony of blessing the bell is removing from it everything worldly and devoting it to spiritual purposes. It partakes much of the ceremony of christening. Sponsors were Judge Anderson and wife, Walter O Shea and wife, Marcus Richards, Mrs J Van Beurden, John O Connor and wife, M Zan and wife and John Donnerberg and wife. After the ceremony the bell was placed in position and at 6 o'clock tolled the Angelus.

Same day a running race, five-eighths of a mile in which four very fast horses are entered.

LAND! LAND! LAND!

And a Chance to Make a Living

Skilled men with small capital can find more [illegible] better advantages with the La Camas colony at La Camas W T than at any other place in the Northwest. The chances to get a home cheaply and profitably are positively unequaled. Five hundred tracts of land to choose from all most delightfully situated and exceedingly fertile. Thousands of dollars are being expended in manufacturing enterprises. A hundred enterprises yet to be developed. Men skilled in any branch of manufacture or trade are invited to come and see our plant. All who want homes are especially invited to come and see how good a start a hundred dollars will make, viz: On the land $50; on the lumber, $50. We are building a manufacturing town, and want people. Those with small means are welcomed, and those with large means will be shown splendid ways of employing money. Don't come expecting immediate employment if you have no money to start in with. To get here take the Steamer Traveler at foot of Morrison street, Portland, at 2:30 P M daily.

THE EAST SIDE

SUCCESSFUL LAUNCH

The new ferry boat for the Stark Street Ferry Company was successfully launched from Paquet's yard yesterday morning. The boat had been moved some eight or ten feet Saturday night and then left till Monday morning, so that owing to the spongy nature of the ground it had settled again to a [illegible] extent and needed considerable more coaxing before it would take the water. Screws were applied to the stern and the boat started twice only to stop after running three or four feet owing doubtless to the tallow with which the ways were greased becoming cold and hard. Finally at about 10 minutes to 12 a third start was made which proved very effectual, the craft gently and gracefully gliding into the Willamette as if taking naturally and kindly to the element for which it was destined. It went as far as the middle of the river before the impetus gave out and of course like all new crafts floated like a duck. The new boat is 80 feet long being made twenty feet shorter than the one now in use for the purpose of better handling in case of high water and will also be supplied with Gates' patent steering gear so that it can be run without the cable when necessary. There are two hulls five feet apart each sixteen feet in width while the deck is forty-eight feet across. The plan of the boat is similar to that now in use except that the cabins are on either side of the house in the center instead of on the sides of the boat being close to the boiler, passengers can always depend on a warm berth winter or summer. The capacity for teams is greater than the old boat and it is designed to admit of two abreast on each side of the house so that it loses nothing by being shorter than the other. The Willamette Iron Works will furnish the boilers and machinery and it is expected to be ready for service in sixty days.

NEW [illegible] CHURCH

At the conference of the Evangelical Association [illegible] at Corvallis in May last it was decided to locate a church in [illegible] addition, East Portland, and Rev C C Poling was appointed as its pastor. Since that time services have been held regularly at Sunter's hall and there is now an organized class of twenty five members and a Sunday school having a regular attendance of about fifty. The church has recently purchased lots [illegible] block 8 located [illegible] southeast corner of [illegible] and Sixth streets and have made arrangements for the building of a church thereon. The dwelling formerly standing [illegible] has been removed back [illegible] and is occupied by the pastor. The church building will be commenced forthwith. It will be [illegible] It is expected to be ready by the 1st of October. Meantime services will continue at [illegible] hall at 11 A M and 7½ P M every Sunday with Sunday school at 10 A M

RUNAWAY

A runaway team with a wagon from which one of the [illegible] had [illegible] went flying [illegible] yesterday afternoon. They [illegible] distance [illegible] being nearly exhausted [illegible] was an easy matter to stop them [illegible] driver who had followed [illegible] hatless soon after [illegible] the horses [illegible] an Italian [illegible] load of manure [illegible] cursed [illegible] saying a word [illegible] with them [illegible] his hat

BURGLARS

Burglars [illegible] in East Portland Sunday night as the following reports go to show. Mrs J [illegible] who resides on [illegible] Sixth and [illegible] was aroused from slumber by hearing the rattling of tin. By the aid of a lamp which was kept burning she saw a man standing in front of the [illegible] with her husband's pantaloons in his hands and [illegible] falling upon the carpet. She was very much frightened but she called to her husband who awoke immediately but the man dropped the pantaloons and escaped. About $[illegible] was found missing from the garments.

The residence of H Cason on corner of Sixth and I streets was also visited. Mr Cason who had not been feeling very well got up about 1 o'clock and went into the back yard and on his return laid down in another room instead of going to bed. He had laid there but a few moments when his wife was awakened by a cold hand touching her person and a fumbling under the bed clothes. She screamed and a man ran from the bed to the door and made his escape before Mr Cason had time to arise from the lounge. After he had gone the premises were examined and nothing was missed.

The small frame building occupied by Mr. John Miller as a shoe shop on the corner of Fourth and I streets was burglarized during the night and one pair of [illegible] boots which had been newly footed and worth about $6 a pair of [illegible] gaiters worth $[illegible] a pair of men's boots and a pair of girl's shoes which had been left for repairs were stolen. Entrance was also gained to Justice Sliker's residence corner of Twelfth and G streets and a man was seen in the house but nothing has been missed.

The residence of Mr W H Moore was also entered during the night. Mrs. Moore states that she heard some one in their house and felt some one fumbling at the head of her bed, and also heard departing footsteps.

[illegible] Snelling's residence corner of Eighth and J streets was visited and 10 cents in silver was taken from his pants pocket.

Mr N P Johnston a carpenter engaged on Mr. F [illegible] Thorp's new residence on corner of Sixth and [illegible] streets left his chest of tools securely locked in the building on Saturday evening when he quit work and yesterday morning when Mr Johnston went to work the chest was gone. He is a poor man and is unable to purchase more tools at present. Mr F S Dunning kindly consented to loan him sufficient tools to finish his job. The chest was found under the elevated roadway on O street. The lock was broken and all the largest and most useful tools were gone and a few of the smaller ones remaining

THE SUITS AGAINST THE CITY

City Attorney Harrington made a verbal report of the status of the various law suits against the city. In the matter of the Holladay avenue improvement the court had [illegible] the proceed[illegible] of the coun[illegible] but plaintiffs having filed a bill of equity final disposition of the matter had been delayed to the present term of court. The case would come up in a day or two and he believed the city would be triumphant

The application of Mr Strong for an injunction against the Fifth street bridge over Sull[illegible] gulch had been refused and that matter was at an end unless taken to the supreme court which plaintiff threatened

In the matter of the injunction suit of the O & C R R [illegible] ago at the proposed elevated roadway on [illegible] street the company had been allowed under instructions of the committee on streets to retain their track on the present grade of First street subject to the order of the council

In the suit of Pretteman et al in which plaintiff protest payment for the Fifth street bridge between J and L he found the bridge had not been accepted by the street commissioner and had received opinions of competent men that the work had not been done in a satisfactory manner. Property owners were willing to pay the warrant if the bridge was so altered or repaired as to make a substantial fulfillment of the contract. The principal trouble appeared to be with the mudsills and these could not be examined till the water [illegible]

In the suit of William Dalton et al enjoining the collection of [illegible] general tax on account of errors in valuation and assessment the argument on the demurrer had been completed and submitted to the court that day and would be passed upon today

In the suit of Sam H[illegible] for damages for the city [illegible] his property for street purposes without first condemning the same he would file answer in a day or two and ask to have the same dismissed

The city attorney had confidence that all suits against the city would result in its favor

SCENERY OF SURPASSING BEAUTY—THE VILLARD FAILURE.

The Chinese Question Ably and Fairly Discussed.

The following letter was written to the Milwaukee Sentinel by its editor, the Hon. Horace Rublee, who recently spent some time in this city. Mr. Rublee was for eight years the United States minister to Switzerland, and is well fitted to appreciate the attractions of this country which he so felicitously describes:

PORTLAND, Or., June 30.—The climate of northern Oregon and Washington territory is the most temperate in the United States. The fierce extremes of heat and cold which are felt in the northern states east of the Rocky mountains are unknown here. The thermometer never falls below zero in winter and seldom reaches as low as 10 above. A snowstorm is a rare occurrence, and the snow which falls quickly melts. In summer the temperature sometimes rises to 90 degrees during the hottest part of the day, but this is exceptional. As a rule, people wear about the same kind of clothing here, summer and winter. The nights are always cool. After the warmest day, as soon as the sun is down, the thermometer falls below 70. I have been here since the middle of June, during which time very hot weather has been reported from the east, but there has been hardly an evening when a little fire in the grate was not pleasant, and no day that would be called warm in Wisconsin. It is much like the climate of England, except that there is less rain in summer. The rainfall in winter and the early spring is usually heavy, but the summers are generally dry, rain being uncommon in July and August. Owing to the coolness of the nights, corn does not prosper, and peaches grown here are of inferior quality, but wheat and other grains, grass and nearly all the ordinary farm products, as well as apples, pears, cherries and small berries thrive. The Oregon cherries are probably the best in the world. The climate seems peculiarly favorable to their perfect development. No insect pests interfere with them, and they are not only very large, but of delicious flavor. It is now the hight of the cherry season, and they are cheap and abundant.

DENSE GROWTH OF TIMBER.

The whole country west of the Cascade mountains, with the exception of tracts of prairie land in the Willamette valley and southern Oregon, was originally covered with a dense growth of timber, mostly fir, with a sprinkling of yellow pine and hemlock intermixed, and cottonwoods, swamp maples, dwarf oaks and elder on bottom lands near streams and lakes. As yet but little inroad has been made in this great forest, except by the fires, which in dry seasons have scathed parts of it. Immense quantities of lumber have been cut near the streams, but the supply is so great that it is hardly missed. From the summit of any hill in the neighborhood of this city one looks out over

"Majestic woods of somber-tinted green,
Stage above stage high waving o'er the hills,
Or to the horizon wide diffused,
A boundless deep immensity of shade."

But though the native forests are composed almost exclusively of evergreens, the deciduous trees introduced here prosper with a rapid and luxuriant growth. Portland has been settled nearly forty years, and the streets and lawns are well provided with trees of various kinds. Among these are elms, maples, chestnuts and black walnuts, all of which thrive as if they were to the manor born. The mildness of the winters favors the growth of many varieties of ornamental shrubs and vines which cannot be grown in our state, such as the English ivy, laurels, holly, box, trivet and the California sequoia. Roses of all varieties, many of which can only be produced in hot houses with us, grow in the open air, unvexed by insects, and unfold their perfect blossoms in prodigal profusion. The elder, which is only a shrub with us, becomes a large tree here, and with its masses of white blossoms—which later become purple clusters of berries—and spreading top, forms an ornamental feature of many lawns. Some of them have trunks more than a foot in diameter, and their hight is greater than that of the largest apple tree.

THE METROPOLIS OF THE NEW NORTHWEST.

This city is the metropolis, or trade center, of the new northwest. Other points like Tacoma and Seattle have hopes of becoming rivals, but no immediate prospect of their expectations will be realized. It contains a population of between 30,000 and 40,000, including some 5000 Chinese. It is as well built as most towns of its size in the east. The business streets are mostly of brick, many of them covered, however, with cement in imitation of stone. The private residences are generally of wood, and many of them spacious and handsome, with fine lawns, trees and masses of shrubbery. The broad, placid waters of the Willamette, clear and of a beautiful greenish color, extend along the front of the town. The river flows into the Columbia some ten miles, or more to the northwest. At this point it runs almost directly westward. Large ships and ocean steamers ascend thus far. English ships are now lying at the Portland docks, and before the opening of the Northern Pacific railway, the exports and imports of the country were all by way of the sea. The site is admirably adapted for a city. The ground rises by an easy grade from the river extending back for a mile or more to the foot of high bluffs, which skirt the city at the southwest. It is a smooth, inclined plane, broken in one or two places by ravines made by brooks that descend from the bluffs. From almost every point the snowy summits of Mount Hood and St. Helens are visible in clear weather. The bluffs will, no doubt, by and by, become the favorite residence part of the city. They are already beginning to be occupied. They are dimpled with hollows and nooks along their sides, affording ample space for houses and lawns, as well as upon the summit.

SUBLIME MOUNTAIN SCENERY.

The view is one of surpassing beauty. One looks down upon the city and the river as Florence and the Arno are seen from San Miniato, and beyond is the vast undulating extent of forest enclosed by the blue ridges of the Cascade mountains, above which rise the majestic summits of Mt. Hood, Mt. Adams, Mt. St. Helens and Tacoma. These lordly peaks which rise from 10,000 to 14,000 feet above the sea level and wear a shining garment of perpetual snow, need not shrink from comparison with the most admired summits in Switzerland. Unlike the Alps, each stands apart from the others in solitary majesty ruling over a wide domain. As seen from Portland, Mt. Hood is the most impressive. Its summit is about sixty miles distant, a little south of east. It is a sharp pinnacle, very regular in form, and spreading its snowy skirts far in either direction. St. Helens is somewhat nearer and has the form of a sugar loaf. Tacoma is 150 miles away, but in a clear day is still a very noticeable object on the northern horizon. Adams is an irregular but picturesque mass, and shines like a steadfast golden cloud on the northeastern horizon. One of the wealthy citizens of Portland has built a handsome residence upon a spur of the bluffs, where he has several acres of comparatively level ground commanding the whole of this magnificent prospect. Where a dozen years ago was a tangled growth of fir trees he has now the smoothest and greenest lawns imaginable, with a great variety of choice trees and shrubbery, exquisite hedges, bowers of ivy and honeysuckle, and masses of blooming flowers. What he has accomplished will stimulate others to follow his example.

EFFECT OF THE VILLARD FAILURE.

A serious check upon the progress of Portland was given by the failure of Villard, and the depreciation of the several Villard stocks. Villard was interested in Portland property, and had begun or was proposing some important improvements. He had begun and expended about $200,000 upon a large hotel here, occupying the whole of a block 200 feet square. The walls of the edifice, built solidly of stone, had been completed to the height of one story above the basement when work on it was suspended. It is likely to remain a long time in its present condition. Its construction is such that it cannot well be used for any purpose but a hotel, and there is really no demand here for so large a house, and it could not be made to pay. There were also to be erected a "grand union passenger depot" of stone, with a frontage of 620 feet, and a "great railroad bridge across the Willamette, 1,186 feet in length from centre to centre of the end piers, besides construction and repair shops on a great scale, and other 'terminal facilities,'" all of which have been indefinitely postponed. These works would have given employment to a host of workmen, and would have distributed a vast sum of money through the city. Besides this indirect loss, many of the citizens have lost heavily in Northern Pacific, Oregon Transcontinental and other kindred stocks. After they began to decline, the confidence in them was so great that persons who believed "the bottom had been reached" invested heavily in them. The bottom, however, kept receding, showing even lower deeps, taking their money with it. In view of the circumstances, the town has borne the shock wonderfully well. If its business had not been founded on an unusually solid basis, there would have been widespread ruin. But, in fact there have been few failures and no serious ones. Real estate has ceased to boom, a slight decline in rents and values has followed, and sales are slow. Still, there is considerable building going forward, and the general business of the city is fair. The great expectations of a year ago have been disappointed, but a healthy trade and growth still continue. The salmon fisheries of the Columbia river are an important element in the trade of Portland, and it has extensive flouring mills and iron works where excellent ore, found but a few miles away, is smelted. The amount expended last year in the construction of private residences was $324,000 and for stores and office buildings nearly $600,000. The total expended upon new buildings during the year was $1,753,000. Among the edifices erected was a high school building upon which $160,000 was spent, and which is not yet completed. There are several large and handsome ward school buildings and a "university," of course. Like most states, Oregon has several "universities." A library association, open to all who wish to become members for a moderate annual payment, contains 6000 or 8000 volumes of well selected books, and reading rooms where most of the leading journals of the United States as well as some English and Canadian papers, and nearly all important American and English periodicals may be found.

THE CHINAMEN IN PORTLAND.

The Chinese element on the Pacific coast is always an interesting feature to the eastern visitor. It is proportionately as large in Portland as in San Francisco. The gentlemen from across the Pacific have obtained almost exclusive possession of one of the principal business streets of the city. They pay such liberal rents that landlords who, in the abstract, are earnest believers in the maxim that "the Chinese must go," cannot resist the temptation to accept them as tenants. There are a number of wealthy Chinese merchants in the city, dealers in teas and other articles from their native country. The street, however, is mostly occupied by small, dark, dingy shops and restaurants, patronized by Chinamen who are engaged in various humble employments about the city. In the windows may be seen strange looking articles of food displayed, not at all appetizing in appearance. A half grown pig, roasted whole, may frequently be seen hanging from a window; from it slices are cut off of a size to suit customers. When the Chinaman indulges in animal food pig is his favorite dish, a fact that goes far to support the assertion of Charles Lamb that roast pig was invented or discovered by the Chinese. At present, there is less demand for labor than heretofore in this section of the country, and many of the Chinese are out of employment. They lounge in considerable numbers about the shops of their countrymen waiting for jobs.

CHINESE THEATERS AND JOSS HOUSE.

They have two theaters and a joss house. The Chinese theater has often been described, and is very curious. No scenery is employed and there is no curtain. The actors enter and retire by doors at the rear of the stage. The orchestra is seated on the stage behind the actors, and keeps up an almost constant din of what, to an European ear, is a barbarous dissonance in which the droning of some instrument that emits a sound somewhat like a bag-pipe, and the rattle of what sounds like cow-bells, are the predominating noises. The costume of the actors is often rich. Much of the play seems to consist of long addresses, or soliloquies, which are chanted or sung. The victim of a tragedy, after properly dying, gets up in full view of the audience and serenely walks away. A Chinese play is a prodigious affair in respect to length occupying many evenings before it can be concluded, and the evenings at a Chinese theater are long, the performance being protracted till 1 or 2 o'clock after midnight. At those spectacles one feels that he is transferred into the very atmosphere of a civilization utterly alien to that of the European race. The language, the costumes, the manners are Asiatic, and one sees a dramatic representation developed under influences entirely distinct from those under which our own theaters have been produced, and such as has existed no doubt without change for thousands of years. The joss house in Portland is in a large room on the second floor of a business block. The arrangement suggests analogies with that of a Catholic church, and shows the kinship which exists between widely separated religions. At the rear of the room is a gilded altar with many images, with tapers that are constantly burning, and censers that diffuse the fragrance of burning sandal wood. Gilded shrines and images occupy other parts of the room. "A dim religious light," is maintained throughout the apartment. It is open to all comers, Chinese or American. When I visited it, with a Portland gentleman, we found no one in it. An open door led into a dirty apartment in the rear, where there was a small cooking stove, and a Chinaman, apparently a common laborer, was stolidly sitting on the floor smoking a cigar.

UNPOPULAR, BUT USEFUL.

The Chinaman, notwithstanding his unpopularity, has thus far been a very useful being on the Pacific coast. His cheap labor has contributed largely to the development of the country. Here, besides doing the laundry work of the city, he is a cook and general house servant. He saws wood, he mows the lawns, he works the gardens, he is a scavenger and a vender of fruits and vegetables. Lightly traversing the streets with two large baskets containing his "truck" suspended one from each end of a pole about eight feet in length that he carries balanced across his shoulders, he calls from house to house and supplies fruits and vegetables to those who want them. Thus equipped, he occupies too much room for the sidewalks and is required to keep in the streets. As a house servant he is often excellent, and his spotless white tunic, a pattern of neatness. He learns quickly all the mysteries of the art of cooking, has rarely to be shown more than once how to perform a task, moves noiselessly about with a wonderful celerity, attends faithfully to his duties, seldom complaining, speaks only in the most laconic terms and never gossips, while doing as much work as is ordinarily accomplished by two or three house servants. The Chinaman is also the railroad laborer and section man in this part of the country, and does most of the work in the salmon canneries. He never strikes or goes on a spree. He is very neat in his person; the common workmen digging on the railway are said, when their day's work is done, to take a bath and put on clean garments for the night. They drink no intoxicating liquors, but are inveterate smokers of tobacco, and, for more serious dissipation, smoke opium, a vice, however, that injures only those who indulge in it and leads to no turbulence or brawls involving the peace of others. The Chinaman is sometimes a thief but certainly not oftener than the white man. Crimes of violence occur at times among them.

CHINESE TRIBUNALS.

They have police regulations of their own and differences between them are often settled by tribunals unknown to the laws of the United States. Sometimes, however, they resort to the American courts. I have the brief of a case recently taken on appeal to the Oregon supreme court, in which one Chinaman sues another to collect a promissory note. From it I copy the note as it has been translated into English by a Chinaman versed in the latter language. It is curious not only for its form, but as a specimen of Chinese English, and reads as follows:

"This note for Ah Ho is now necessary. Wish to get the money. Don't know where they are going to get it, so Ah Ho consult with Hong Chong to be witting. Ask Lem Hi go to be introduced to ask who got money to loan. Asked Charlie Yen and Duck Fong. Yen has $300 and Duck Fong has $200, altogether $500. This money to be handed to Ah Ho, so to be willing by this note Hong Chong securing, this money to be remit in one month due; the money and interest will all to be paid by the due time. Ah Ho had no money to buy, ask security Hong Chong. All will be paid so they altogether to be willing write down this note to be promise to this note for security to the promise not to broke."

Dated Chinese date Sept. 27th (1883.)

(Sgd) AH HO.
Security, HONG CHONG.
Witness, LEM HI.

Very few, if any, of the Chinese learn to speak English, except in very broken and imperfect fashion. Their vocabulary contains but a few verbs and nouns and slang phrases. It is almost impossible to hold any connected conversation with them.

THE EXCLUSION OF THE CELESTIALS.

While they have many good qualities and are very useful as working men, it is not at all strange that the further immigration of the Chinese is almost universally opposed by the Americans on the Pacific coast. They were rapidly becoming a formidable element of the population, and they have no interests or sympathies in common with our people. They cannot be expected to co-operate in any public enterprise or movement for the promotion of the general wealth. All their traditions of race, religion and learning are wholly unlike and alien from ours. They care nothing for the country or its progress. They do not come to make their homes here, but merely to gain money with the purpose of returning to their native land. Fortunately, they neglected to take out naturalization papers until the prejudice aroused against them reached such a point that a law was enacted forbidding their admission to citizenship. Otherwise they would now be the objects of fear and flattery on the part of the politicians, and it would have been impossible to have erected any barrier against their overrunning and becoming the predominant race in the Pacific states. The wisdom of excluding them and reserving the country for our own race and civilization, I think, will be clear to any person who will investigate and consider the subject without prejudice.

A MERE SENTIMENTALISM.

The argument that we are acting in violation of the spirit of true republicanism in excluding any class of people from settlement within our borders, and that we are bound to regard this country as a refuge for the oppressed of all countries, is a mere sentimentalism. The people of a republic have a right to select the members of their own family, and to exclude from entering their household strangers whose presence will be likely to be injurious to the commonwealth. It is further to be remembered that the Chinamen do not fly from oppression to the United States, but simply come here in the hope of making a fortune which they intend to enjoy in their own land. Hence, while recognizing how large a part more demagoguery played in the enactment of the anti-Chinese law, and that it was needlessly hurried through without a proper respect for our treaty obligations, I regard it as based on an entirely sound principle. The law is not wholly effective, as many Chinese succeed in smuggling themselves into the United States by way of British Columbia, but it is sufficiently enforced to prevent any formidable accession to the numbers of pigtails on this coast.

A GAMBLER'S GROWL.

A Pessimistic View of Sport throughout the Country, Including Portland.

San Francisco Chronicle.

"Professional gamblers of high and low degree were never in as tight lines as now, and unless the tide soon turns in their favor they will be forced to abandon the green cloth and seek other vocations to secure even the necessaries of life."

The speaker was a veteran gambler, an intelligent Englishman known as "Rocky," with probably as many aliases as a cat is expected to have lives. For the past twenty years he has lived by his wits, making and squandering thousands annually. He can play an honest game if circumstances compel him, but his aim ever is to have the odds immeasurably in his favor. He is an adept in dealing a brace game of faro, or in swindling at short cards, but the height of his ambition is to transfer an innocent man's money into his own pockets by means of some confidence game. In the last named role he may be classed as an expert.

"I have just returned to the bay," continued the disconsolate sport, "after a two years' professional tour, playing brief engagements at all the leading sporting centers in the country. I had hoped to find things booming in San Francisco; but the hope was sadly blasted, for I find more broken gamblers here than I found in any other city. High rollers who only a few years ago squandered their hundreds weekly are now glad to capture enough money to lodge in a twenty-five-cent room and subsist on a free lunch. Where one gambler is in funds fully ninety-nine are in distress."

"How did you find the situation at other points?" asked the reporter.

"With very few exceptions just as bad for the fraternity. About two months ago I made a tour on the Northern Pacific road. From St. Paul to Helena I did not find a single place where the gambler could make any money. At Helena and Butte there is considerable sport, but controlled by a few men. Then I went into the Coeur d'Alene mining region in company with several other sports and found that country a dead fraud; there were actually more gamblers there than there were dollars, and our party had a tough time to get out of the infernal country. I visited all the leading points in Oregon and Washington territory only to find 'business' dull everywhere. At Portland there are several lively faro games, played wide open, but the limit is so small that an outsider can't make a winning of any size. Then I took a steamer for 'Frisco, expecting to make some money on the passage. Again I was disappointed. The only gambling on board was at whist—a quarter a corner for the rubber. The degeneracy of the times actually made me sick, and I took to my berth and remained there until the boat reached the dock."

"How fare the sports east of the Rocky mountains?"

"At Denver the game is lively and the doors are wide open, but the bets are small, and the same is true as to Salt Lake. The glory of the gambling camps in New Mexico and Arizona has departed, and even a slick gambler couldn't make enough down there now to feed a crow. At St. Louis and Kansas City, for years the leading sporting centers of the west, not a single gambling house is open. In fact the laws of Missouri make it a felony for any one to run a gambling game within the limits of the state. The same severe law is in force in Tennessee, and the chances are that just such a law will be enacted in most of the states inside of the next few years. And when this change comes about there will be an end to professional gambling, for even the bravest gamester will throw up his hands if he sees that the doors of the penitentiary are yawning for him. On the Mississippi river, once noted for its heavy games, there is very little play, and on most of the boats gambling is positively prohibited. In Chicago, where the heaviest games at faro have been played of late, the mayor has announced his firm determination to shut up every gambling house, and of course he can accomplish the task if he means business. In New York city gambling is under the ban, although faro games are constantly run on the sly. In Philadelphia there has been very little gaming for years, and at Washington only a few faro games, and skin ones at that, are under headway. Boston and Providence are the only two points in New England patronized by professional gamesters, and at both the betting is very tame. Throughout the southern states there is very little betting at faro, and at the favorite game (poker) the stakes are light. In New Orleans gambling is licensed, and in the winter months the betting is very lively, but not a ten dollar piece is wagered on the green cloth now where a thousand was ten years ago. The fact is that gambling in public houses is rapidly on the decline throughout the whole country, and the signs of the times indicate death to the green cloth at no far distant day."

THE ROMANCE OF BANDITTI.

A Robber whose Daughter was at School in Europe—A Dashing Amazon.

Mexico Letter in the San Francisco Chronicle.

Mexican brigands are waking up to the fact that their occupation is gone. Rapid travel lays bare lives and methods that distance and inaccessibility have hitherto enveloped in a veil of romance. Yet the old atmosphere still lingers protectingly about a few which accounts for the fact that Chucho el Roto, the notorious bandit, who was captured at Queretaro the other day, was made prisoner, while the less famous ruffians were all shot. He has as many friends in Mexico as the James boys had in Missouri, and has escaped the clutches of the law and baffled pursuit again and again, until he won the name of "The Mysterious Man;" has been imprisoned in the past and made daring escapes; as he will probably do in the future. One of the secrets of his popularity is that his code of honor allows no Mexican to suffer at his hands; while he has robbed fortunes from unfortunate travelers, he has always spared his own countrymen and has especially delighted in preying upon Spaniards. His methods have often been original and fearless, and yet he has also played the common role of garroter and burglar. The one tender pulsation in the black heart of this ruthless robber beats in unwavering faithfulness and idolatrous love for his daughter, a beautiful girl eighteen years of age, whom he is educating in Brussels, who is ignorant of the true character of her bandit father, and upon whom he lavishes almost all the money that comes into his hands by his system of "forced loans."

More romantic than Chucho el Roto is the little I can gather about a gang of wreckers who were pursued and shot less than a month ago in the state of Durango. The leader of the band was well known to the Mexican public by sight and through a record of daring deeds and bloody crimes. Young and boyish in appearance, handsome, dashing, and so brave and beloved by the entire clan of eighteen brigands that the identity of this "chief" was never betrayed nor suspected. The other day the rurales tracked them down, sent eight bullets through the captain's heart, and destroyed the whole band, not leaving one to tell the story, which all will long to hear, as I did when I learned that the handsome bandit boy was only a bit of successful masquerading, for when the riddled sombrero was removed and the bullet burnt blanket thrown aside a shapely form was revealed and the astonished soldiers learned that the leader of their foe had been a woman.

English Churchyard Row.

The little village of Donington-on-Bain, in Lincolnshire, England, has been the scene of a serious disturbance. It seems that the rector of the parish has the right to charge a guinea, presumably ground rent, for every tombstone set up in his churchyard. A year ago one of his parishioners, wishing to set up a modest monument to the memory of his dead wife, as a preliminary process set up a plea of poverty, and wanted the clergyman to accept a half guinea, all the money he could raise toward raising the tombstone. This the rector refused. Whereupon the irate parishioner took up his "Ebenezer," as the English phrase has it, set up his tombstone also, and then, quite satisfied, set out for home. But, unhappily for the rector who was set in his ways, and the tombstone suddenly disappeared. Notwithstanding diligent search was made, no anything has been seen of that stone for a twelvemonth till a few days ago, when, after a year's talk about it in the village, and even burning the rector in effigy, so obnoxious had he become, one villager made a wager with another that he would find that tombstone. And he did find the missing monument under a milldam, where it had been thrown for concealment. Nobody seems to stop to consider how the betting villager knew where to go at once for the lost object, whether he saw some one throw it there, or was hired himself to do it—but the whole village is in ferment over it, and the bishop of the diocese deems it of sufficient importance to appoint a commission to sift the matter to the bottom, even the bottom of the milldam.

Strange Professional Custom in Ireland.

Hard worked horses, when led out to a meadow on Sundays, enjoy so much the sense of freedom that they generally recreate themselves with a gallop first and then settling down on the grass roll about on their backs, with their hoofs kicking in the air. The neighs they send forth while engaged in their gambols are absolute squeals of delight. And so it is with the artisan, the merchant, the politician and men of various professions.

A drug journal gives a correspondent two formulas for "butter colors." They contain annato, turmeric, saffron, caustic potash, borax and alcohol.

TRADE AND COMMERCE.

MONDAY, July 21.

Yesterday's steamer brought a more than average freight list. The outgoing steamer had but 391 tons and cargo included 32 flasks quicksilver, the first similar shipment in some time. Our spell of weather does not appear to have ended, although no rain has fallen since Saturday of consequence.

PRODUCE RECEIPTS—Past forty-eight hours: 412 bbls flour, 512 ctls oats, 43,370 lbs wool, 193 lbs hides, 28 cs eggs, 31 bxs fruit, 4 pkgs butter, 88 bbls lime. Also 310 bbls flour, 18,440 lbs wool, 2295 lbs hides from the eastern section.

IMPORTS—Per steamer State of California, from San Francisco: 777 hf 471 bbls 2 bxs 107 bxs 342 sks sugar, 21 bbls 31 kgs 10 cs syrup, 10 bbls chicory, 12 bbls 40 cs 171 sks coffee, 65 bxs 70 sks rice, 12 bbls 2112 sks salt, 2 bbls 20 cs 57 kgs pickles, 62 pkgs tea, 176 sks beans, 131 cs canned goods, 3 sks tapioca, 6 sks sago, 16 kgs 1 cs sauce, 23 cs chocolate, 57 pkgs spice, 5 cs pearl barley, 10 kgs 8 cs mustard, 3 cs cream tartar, 56 cs soda and cal, 30 cs matches, 9 sks feed, 1 bbl 42 bls meal, 14 cs sugar lemon, 657 bxs soap, 19 cs beef, 2 cs yeast powder, 200 cs candles, 68 cs sardines, 70 cs extracts, 117 cs baking powder, 27 cs axle grease, 102 cs paste, 14 cs candy, 36 sks nuts, 8 hf 18 bbls vinegar, 4 cs 3 tcs hams, 24 cs 25 tcs lard, 1 hf 2 bbls prunes, 19 bxs dr fruit, 19 pkgs raisins, 60 bxs dr apples, 73 cs crackers, 62 cs cod, 5 cs dates, 2 cs figs, 62 cs honey, 39 cs cheese, 3 bxs butter, 12 cs lemons, 1 cs bananas, 4 bxs oranges, 473 bxs fruit, 77 sks onions, 10 bbls sulphur, 50 bbls plaster, 260 sks ground barley, 7 bls wheat sacks, 8 cls rope, 24 bxs nails, 19 sks coal, 50 pigs lead, 20 bxs 160 pigs tin, 40 pkgs tobacco, 65 cs cigars.

EXPORTS—Per steamer Oregon to San Francisco: 880 hf sks flour, 636 sks bran, 93,877 lbs wool, 1 cs flannels, 3 cs 6 bls blankets, 6 cs cassimere, 32 flasks quicksilver, 8 green 50 dry hides, 4 bls sheepskins, 13 bls deerskins, 182,000 lath, 328 pkgs barrel material, $25,784 treasure.

WHEAT—Advices remark nothing of new interest to day. Locally there is nothing doing.

The agitation in Belgium against the proposed tax on imported cereals has increased. It is alleged that such a tax would ruin the port of Antwerp.

Much anxiety is felt in southern Russia over the state of the wheat crop, for the locusts, in great swarms are despoiling the grain fields, and are making special ruin in the great tract lying between the Dan and Dniester. A committee of entomologists under the guidance of six professors of the university of Odessa are devising schemes to rid the land of the unwelcome hordes through the several provinces of Bessarabia, Cherson and Jekaterinoslaw. In Poland the stand of winter wheat is good, and in the provinces of Volga and Konow the grain crops are satisfactory. In the northern and central portion of Russia the crops are in some places up to the average, in others not so good.

At present the weather throughout England is wet and not the most favorable to growing crops. For weeks past alternate sunshine and rain has created considerable anxiety, but there is nothing absolutely bad in the outlook.

OATS—Receipts continue fully up to requirement and as offerings are free prices are not improving. Quote feed lots 45@47 cents.

PROVISIONS—More coming in and receipts include consignments from Roseburg and eastern Oregon. Stocks are consequently again large but prices do not suffer. Quote jobbing values: Bacon 11@13½c, shoulders 8@9c, local country cured hams 14@15c, best local 16@17c, eastern 17@18. Lard in tins 12c, kegs 11@12; best local tins and small eastern tins 13@14c.

FRUITS, ETC.—Cold weather breaks in on the demand and a small business is doing. Importations of California were small and sold at last values. Home grown apples are slowly improving as to quality and sale. The market is crowded with plums. Tropical fruits sell slowly at present.

EGGS—Stocks only fair and receipts apparently lessening. Quote market firm at 20 cents.

CHICKENS—In fair movement at [illegible] for young and [illegible] for old.

Lady Violinists.

Boston girls, those fair and faultless maidens, have lately taken to violin playing. Between one and five hundred are now learning to draw the tuneful bow. It is infinitely better than piano pounding, anyhow—that infliction from which the people of Berlin have just petitioned the authorities of that doomed city to deliver them. There is music in the violin. There's none in the piano—at least there is not so much music as torture. The banging of its keys requires more physical strength than the light touch of the silvery violin string does. The violin for many reasons seems specially adapted to ladies. Their ears are as sensitive to sound as their eyes are to color. The subtle violin notes respond especially to their delicate finger touch. Yet it seems not to have occurred to the sex to learn to play this instrument till now Boston has started the fashion. There have been numerous famous women pianists, but only one noted violin player—Camilla Urso. Where is the female Paganini, Remenyi or Joseffy? Will Boston perhaps furnish her?

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has demonstrated its power of cure for all diseases of the blood.

The Harpooner's Story.

New Bedford, June 1, 1883.

DR. J. C. AYER & CO.—Twenty years ago I was a harpooner in the North Pacific, when five others of the crew and myself were laid up with scurvy. Our bodies were bloated, gums swollen and bleeding, teeth loose, purple blotches all over us, and our breath seemed rotten. Taking it by and large we were pretty badly off. All our lime juice was accidentally destroyed, but the captain had a couple dozen bottles of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA and gave us that. We recovered on it quicker than I have ever seen men brought about by any other treatment for Scurvy, and I've seen a good deal of it. Seeing no mention in your Almanac of your Sarsaparilla being good for scurvy, I thought you ought to know of this, and so send you the facts.

Respectfully yours, RALPH V. WINGATE.

The Trooper's Experience.

Masern, Basutoland, S. Africa, March 7, 1883.

DR. J. C. AYER & CO.—Gentlemen: I have much pleasure to testify to the great value of your Sarsaparilla. We have been stationed here for over two years, during which time we had to live in tents. Being under canvas for such a time brought on what is called in this country "veldt-sores." I had those sores for some time. I was advised to take your Sarsaparilla, two bottles of which made my sores disappear rapidly, and I am now quite well.

Yours truly, T. E. BODEN,
Trooper, Cape Mounted Riflemen.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Is the only thoroughly effective blood purifier, the only medicine that eradicates the poisons of Scrofula, Mercury, and Contagious Disease from the system.

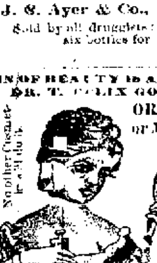
Sold by all druggists: Price $1, six bottles for $5.



A SKIN OF BEAUTY IS A JOY FOREVER.
DR. T. FELIX GOURAUD'S
ORIENTAL CREAM or Magical Beautifier

Purifies as well as Beautifies the Skin. No other Cosmetic will do it.

Removes Pimples, Freckles, Tan, Moth Patches, Rash and Skin diseases, and every blemish on beauty, and defies detection. It has stood the test of 30 years, and is so harmless we taste it, to be sure the preparation is properly made. Accept no counterfeit of similar name. The distinguished Dr. L. A. Sayre said to a lady of the haut ton (a patient): "As you ladies will use them, I recommend 'Gouraud's Cream' as the least harmful of all skin preparations." One bottle will last six months, using it every day. Also Poudre Subtile removes superfluous hair without injury to the skin. Mme. M. B. T. GOURAUD, Sole Prop., 48 Bond st., N. Y. For sale by all druggists and fancy goods dealers throughout the United States, Canadas and Europe. Beware of base imitations. $1,000 reward for arrest and proof of any one selling same.
